Billie Estes Wins Parole From Prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six years after entering prison under a 15-year federal sentence for mail fraud and conspiracy, Texas promoter Billie Sol Estes has been paroled to his brother's farm.

After an expedited hearing Monday, the U.S. Parole Board said the 46-year-old Estes could leave the LaTuna Federal Correctional Institution near El Paso, Tex., July 12.

Under terms of his parole, Estes cannot engage in "any self-employment or promotional type activity" unless cleared in advance with the parole board.

Board Chairman George J. Reed said Estes will live with his wife and four children in Abilene, Tex., and work in the farming operation of his brother John.

Although Estes was turned down for parole in his first try 15 months ago and was not scheduled for a rehearing until next December, Reed said new evidence caused the board to expedite a review. He said the evidence was confidential.

Before he entered the Leavenworth, Kan., federal prison March 5, 1965, Estes was one of the nation's most thoroughly investigated businessmen.

After hundreds of federal agents had poured through his extensive business dealings, Estes was convicted in 1963 for mail fraud and conspiracy to defraud.

Air Force Continues Viet Cutback

Fighter-Bomber Operations Are Scaled Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bomber operations in Southeast Asia will be cut about another 25 per cent in the coming year, reducing them to the lowest level since early in the air war, Pentagon sources say.

Current planning calls for a monthly average of about 7,500 Air Force fighter-bomber sorties in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia during the fiscal year starting July 1, the sources said.

That represents a drop of some 2,500 from this year's average of 10,000 sorties a month. A sortie is a single flight by a single plane.

Even before the planned new reduction, fighter-bomber operations have fallen about 50 per cent below the war peak of almost 19,000 a month in fiscal 1968.

Meanwhile, the number of B52 bomber sorties, temporarily up to 1,200 a month because of the intense air campaign to shut off enemy supplies flowing through Laos, will be down to 1,000 a month in the coming fiscal year.

While U.S. ground combat responsibilities are due to end this summer, American war planes will continue to support South Vietnamese troops at least for another year.

As the South Vietnamese air force gradually assumes the principal task, the weight of U.S. air power is expected to concentrate almost entirely on the North Vietnamese supply lines through Laos and Cambodia.

President Nixon has indicated some U.S. air power will remain in the war zone as long as North Vietnam holds Americans prisoner and until the South Vietnamese develop the capacity to defend themselves against a takeover.

Viet Reds Step Up Rocketing, Shelling Of U.S. Bases

By GEORGE ESPER Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces shelled half a dozen major allied bases in South Vietnam today in a fourth day of intensified attacks. A rocket at Da Nang Air Base triggered a massive fuel fire that raged out of control and forced evacuation of hundreds of Americans.

U.S. military analysts termed the shelling attacks a "cheap offensive."

"They take practically no casualties," said one. "They set up rockets on two bamboo sticks and light a time fuse. By the time the rockets fall on U.S. positions, the enemy has been home in bed five hours."

The analysts said captured North Vietnamese and Viet Cong documents indicated more intensified shelling attack in the coming weeks to mark several important Communist holidays.

Kotouc Panel Hears Witnesses

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE Associated Press Writer
FT. MC PHERSON, Ga. (AP) — A military judge directed a verdict of innocent today on a charge that Capt. Eugene M. Kotouc assaulted a suspected Viet Cong prisoner by cutting him on the neck at My Lai in 1968.

But Col. Madison Wright let stand a charge that the 37-year-old Kotouc, of Humboldt, Neb., maimed the same prisoner by cutting off part of a finger during an interrogation.

Wright directed the jury to limit its deliberations to the maiming charge.

The judge took the action after lawyers for Kotouc moved on the second day of his court-martial for Wright to throw out both charges.

Capt. Norman Cooper, Southern Pines, N.C., one of three attorneys for Kotouc, made his motion after the government rested its case.

Cooper held that the government's case was not supported by the evidence.

He said the government had been able to produce only one witness to testify about the alleged assault and that he had failed to substantiate the charge.

The prosecutor, Maj. William Eckhardt, Starkville, Miss., disagreed. He said the testimony of the one witness was proof enough that an assault had occurred on the prisoner.

The government ran through its list of six witnesses Monday in 2½ hours, then asked Wright to recess for the day. He did so over objections from the defense.

"As far as I know we have heard the prosecution's case," said former Nebraska Gov. Robert Crosby of Lincoln, Kotouc's civilian lawyer. "We know of no more witnesses."

"If this is all of this case, with respect to the neck cutting," Crosby told newsmen outside of the courtroom, "I do not hesitate to say this is a 'travesty.'"

Crosby said the captain had never denied accidentally cutting off part of the suspect's finger while questioning him.

The prosecutor, Maj. William Eckhardt, 29, of Starkville, Miss., said in his opening statement he would prove the finger was cut "willfully, intentionally."

Senate Eyes Health Care Costs, Alternative Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — After quickly agreeing that health care costs too much for too little, the Senate Finance Committee continued today its examination of possible cures and how much to charge the taxpayers.

Today's witnesses included United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock and Andrew Biemiller of the AFL-CIO, scheduled to testify on the labor organization's plan for a government-run and financed health system.

Another witness on the calendar was Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.

Health plans covered Monday in the Senate hearing ranged from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's multibillion-dollar federal takeover approach to President Nixon's less extensive proposal to work through existing private insurance firms.

The Senate committee action this week is informational since any legislation must originate in the House, which initiates all financial bills.

The first step on that line occurred today when the administration plan was introduced in the House, although with a substantial modification benefiting small businesses.

As submitted by Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., it would require businesses to provide employees a comprehensive health insurance plan, and pay most of the premium.

Unlike the bill originally developed by the administration, the new version offers a subsidy to reduce the cost to small employers.

Byrnes had expressed fear the original version, with the employer paying at first 65 per cent of the premium and after 2½ years 75 per cent, would discourage employment.

The premium cost, he said, added to payroll taxes and other expenses, might cause some small businesses to decide against hiring "that one extra man."

At Monday's hearing in the Senate, Elliot Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said Monday Kennedy's plan to provide government-paid insurance for virtually all Americans would boost costs $77 billion and triple the average taxpayer's bill.

But Kennedy, Massachusetts Democrat, argued the higher tax cost would be offset by eliminating private health insurance premiums and other out-of-pocket expenses.

Draft Headquarters Target Of Washington Protesters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-war protesters aimed at Selective Service headquarters today as their second target in a week-long prelude to May Day demonstrations designed to shut down government agencies.

However, counter-protests in support of current Vietnam policy were developing, including lobbying in Congress for the rest of the week for "peace which does not reward aggression," according to one statement.

But the focus remained on the protests against the war which continued from the massive antiwar demonstrations of the weekend.

An estimated 100 to 200 youths participating in the antiwar "spring offensive" roamed the Capitol corridors Monday in groups of 25 to 50 putting on guerrilla theater acts in congressional offices and splashing about blood-colored paint.

They shouted in the Senate gallery, interrupting debate three times; they whistled, moaned and writhed on the Capitol steps and in a Senate Office Building cafeteria; they sat in and outside of senatorial offices; for the most part, they scattered under threat of arrest.

PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today that the United States wants to encourage Communist China to take a constructive rather than disruptive role in Asia.

Rogers also told other members of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization that the United States is getting out of the Vietnam war and "we are now on the final lap of that journey."

He said the United States is now considering steps to aid South Vietnam's long-range postwar economic development and he urged other nations to do likewise.

Rogers told the opening session of SEATO's annual spring parley of President Nixon's moves to improve relations between Washington and Peking and of the Chinese invitation to the U.S. table tennis team. He said these vents could lead to a new chapter in U.S.-Chinese relations.

"We believe that the People's Republic of China has a growing role to play in Asia," Rogers said.

"The aim of our policy is not to deny that role but to encourage it—encourage it to be a constructive rather than a disruptive role."

He said America's policy toward China must be carried out "carefully and realistically."

He said that such a policy presents the best long-term hope for the kind of Asia that the SEATO allies want, an Asia in which there can be different political systems.

The position toward China outlined by Rogers, who arrived from Washington Monday night, was in marked contrast to Washington's outlook when it first sponsored the SEATO defense pact 16 years ago.

The ad hoc panel whose chairman is Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., has no official standing and no subpoena power. It may report unofficially to Congress the outcome of its hearings, but no decision has been made by the panel whether it will or not.

Dellums complained today that the Pentagon had given "nonsensical" reasons for refusing to allow Lt. Col. Anthony B. Herbert to testify about alleged war crimes even though he has spoken with newsmen about them in the past.

However, Herbert, who lodged charges against superiors for alleged coverup of civilian slayings and torture in 1968, said Monday night the Army won't let him testify.

Ohio Cities Get Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eight major Ohio cities are eligible for grants of up to $75,000 to finance summer job programs for youths in areas where juvenile delinquency is a problem.

By May 15 each city must submit proposals to the agency for job programs, preferably for recreation leaders or in other areas where youths 14-18 years old would work with other youths.

The programs may not include those for which money has already been appropriated. Each city may submit one application for funds, not to exceed $75,000.

Gov. John J. Gilligan has directed other departments to look for money that could be used to provide summer jobs this year.

WE goofed last Friday the Circleville Income Tax Department told us today, in no uncertain terms.

Roundtown printed a reminder that penalties would be imposed for delinquent city income tax returns after April 30. The reminder should have read: "City Income Tax Department reminds the people that the penalty will be imposed after April 30 if they have not filed the 1970 final return."

We said returns for the last half of 1970 instead of 1970 final return, which is wrong as wrong can be, the City Income Tax Department said. If in doubt about your city income taxes, call the department before Friday because after that date the penalty is imposed.

The telephone number is 474-7722.

Viet Reds Step Up Rocketing, Shelling Of U.S. Bases

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces shelled half a dozen major allied bases in South Vietnam today in a fourth day of intensified attacks. A rocket at Da Nang Air Base triggered a massive fuel fire that raged out of control and forced evacuation of hundreds of Americans.

U.S. military analysts termed the shelling attacks a "cheap offensive."

"They take practically no casualties," said one. "They set up rockets on two bamboo sticks and light a time fuse. By the time the rockets fall on U.S. positions, the enemy has been home in bed five hours."

The analysts said captured North Vietnamese and Viet Cong documents indicated more intensified shelling attack in the coming weeks to mark several important Communist holidays.

They include May Day, a traditional Communist holiday; May 7, the 17th anniversary of the Viet Minh victory over the French at Dien Bien Phu, and May 19, Ho Chi Minh's birthday.

At Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, one of four rockets that hit the air base scored a direct hit on a storage tank containing about 35,000 gallons of jet fuel. The fire spread to another tank containing an equal amount of aviation gasoline.

Barracks and work areas were evacuated for fear the second tank would explode and trigger a chain reaction among half a dozen other fuel tanks. The U.S. Command said there were no casualties.

Headquarters also reported that Cam Ranh Air Base, nearly 300 miles south of Da Nang, was shelled by less than five rounds of rockets for the second successive night. A spokesman said some Americans were wounded. He said there was no material damage.

Other targets included airfields at Pleiku in the central highlands and at Soc Trang and Binh Thuy in the Mekong Delta, and the headquarters of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division at Camp Eagle near Hue.

The U.S. Command said there were no casualties in the attack on Camp Eagle, but the base sustained light damage. There was no immediate report on casualties or damage in the other attacks.

In Quang Ngai Province, about 65 miles south of Da Nang, enemy forces ambushed a U.S. truck convoy on a rural road, wounding five Americans and destroying one vehicle. Enemy losses were not known.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam, ground action was reported generally light and scattered. South Vietnamese headquarters said its forces, back by air strikes and artillery, killed 24 enemy in a battle along the central coastal plain 290 miles northeast of Saigon. One South Vietnamese was killed and six wounded, a communique said.

TV's Double Sessions Given Citizen Support

Teays Valley's plan to go to double sessions was given support in a poll of area citizens, the results of which were discussed at the Monday evening session of the Board of Education.

Superintendent Benis Lutz commented today that out of 4500 copies of letters sent out to residents of the school district, the board noted a return of 15-20 per cent of the forms.

The letters were produced by a citizens committee working with the board. They covered all the alternatives open to the school district, the pros and cons of each, and the board's decision on next school year's attendance schedule.

Of the forms returned, there was a vote of four to one in support of the board's action. If a negative vote was recorded, the citizen was asked to offer his solution. Most did not complete this area. Others taking the time to offer their solutions did not agree in any great amount. Some told the board to build a new building. This was after three subsequent bond issues had been refused by voters in the district.

OTHERS recommended portable classrooms to be added to school sites or to squeeze every possible child into the classroom facilities available.

The board also took action to modify their earlier resolution on double-sessioning. The term "double sessions" was changed to read "extended day scheduling." This was done since planning by high school principal allows the overlap of two periods in the high school and junior high areas. The younger students will be able to go to school earlier and begin classes while the older ones are at lunch. This will cut one hour off the 6 p.m. dismissal time set before.

Teays Valley Board voted to re-employ Superintendent Benis Lutz for a five year period and hired Orlan Cooper as his new assistant. Cooper has long been principal at the Ashville School and has doubled as principal at Scioto since the death of Dayton Sheets in January.

The district is now seeking persons to fill the positions of principal at Ashville, Scioto and the seventh-eighth grade level.

The board approved the resignation of Miss Walda Gard, a high school Spanish teacher, who will be moving from the area when she marries.

Mrs. Mildred Morrison, a cook at the high school, notified the board of her plans for retirement in June.

PROFESSIONAL leaves were approved for Mrs. Dorothy Beavers and David Lawrence to attend a social studies conference on the state level April 30. Use of the school car was okayed for Dale Allen, biology teacher, to take his senior science students on a field trip to the federally funded water pollution facility in Wilmington. The trip has been slated for May 4.

Board members approved a list of 161 seniors for graduation June 4. They also passed a resolution arranging for enumerators to be employed in each township to get a record of all youngsters from birth to age seven for the board to make future projections on first grade enrollment. The enumeration should begin in June.

Present at the meeting were board president Everett Beers, and members Harold Peters, William Hinkle, William Winter, Jack Warner, in addition to local principals, some members of the citizens committee and guests.

A Pentagon spokesman declined comment.

The hearings Monday attracted a dozen antiwar congressmen, but had to operate under a broadcast news blackout imposed by House Speaker Carl Albert. House committees may open meetings to radio and television coverage by a majority vote of their members, but Albert ruled the unofficial panel could not.

In Monday's unsworn testimony former Capt. Robert B. Johnson said he saw shelling of unarmed villages, personally called in air strikes on some of them and participated in 13 search-and-destroy missions to burn South Vietnamese homes and food.

"It became clear to me that we were waging a war not against a specific ideology but against the Vietnamese people," he said.

Former Capt. Ron Bartek, 26, said an American intelligence team tortured an old Vietnamese man by attaching electrical wires to his groin and applying current from a telephone generator. He said this occurred near the commander's headquarters in the center of an American fire base.

Maj. Gordon Livingston, 32, a regimental surgeon, said he saw South Vietnamese national police pouring water on a handkerchief held over the mouth of a prisoner, and that an American officer eventually stopped the torture only when it failed to produce information.

Former Capt. Fred Laughlin, 27, said he was taught to sever the ears of dead enemy soldiers to verify "body count." His platoon mortally wounded an old man in an uncontrolled burst of fire on an unresisting village, he said.

Slogan contest posters placed in the school advised students of the competition and invited participation.

Response to the contest was termed "outstanding" by the sponsors. A deposit box placed in the school building April 12 and collected April 24 held 85 slogan entries.

Police Chief Temple was primary judge of the slogans. He was assisted by committee members Mike Clark, John Fuller, Bill Rosengard, Eugene Dowler, the Rev. David Allardyce, co-chairmen Maynard Burns and Bob Ogden, Gary Dean and Club President Jim Shea.

The winning slogan will be used and distributed to bicycle owners by Kiwanis Club for continuing promotion of bicycle safety.

Commissioners Grant Painting Contract To Hill

Pickaway County Commissioners Monday awarded a contract in the amount of $1,313 to Chet Hill to paint the girls group home on E. Main St.

Commissioner Wayne Hines, who recently underwent surgery and missed several meetings while recuperating, was present at yesterday's meeting along with Dick T. Tootle, chairman of the board of commissioners and Charles Morris.

The group received a petition to vacate First and Second Alleys in Derby from Walton Edon. An earlier petition submitted by Edon to vacate First, Second and Central Alleys was withdrawn.

In his petition, Edon states the two alleys have been abandoned for over 21 years.

The hearings Monday attracted a dozen antiwar congressmen, but had to operate under a broadcast news blackout imposed by House Speaker Carl Albert. House committees may open meetings to radio and television coverage by a majority vote of their members, but Albert ruled the unofficial panel could not.

In Monday's unsworn testimony former Capt. Robert B. Johnson said he saw shelling of unarmed villages, personally called in air strikes on some of them and participated in 13 search-and-destroy missions to burn South Vietnamese homes and food.

"It became clear to me that we were waging a war not against a specific ideology but against the Vietnamese people," he said.

Former Capt. Ron Bartek, 26, said an American intelligence team tortured an old Vietnamese man by attaching electrical wires to his groin and applying current from a telephone generator. He said this occurred near the commander's headquarters in the center of an American fire base.

Maj. Gordon Livingston, 32, a regimental surgeon, said he saw South Vietnamese national police pouring water on a handkerchief held over the mouth of a prisoner, and that an American officer eventually stopped the torture only when it failed to produce information.

Former Capt. Fred Laughlin, 27, said he was taught to sever the ears of dead enemy soldiers to verify "body count." His platoon mortally wounded an old man in an uncontrolled burst of fire on an unresisting village, he said.

South Koreans Hold Election; Park To Win

SEOUL (AP) — South Koreans turned out in large numbers today for another presidential election, and a close race was predicted between incumbent President Chung Hee Park and challenger Kim Dae-jung.

Kim, a 45-year-old National Assemblyman, was given little chance when the New Democratic party nominated him last September to oppose the 53-year-old president's bid for a third term. But his tireless campaigning and fluent oratory attracted a large following, and some observers think he might win.

Final results are expected Wednesday morning. Both Kim's party and Park's ruling Democratic Republic party are basically conservative, pro-American and anti-Communist.

But Kim has proposed a more flexible posture toward North Korea, including mail, press and sports exchanges, and a neutralization of the Korean peninsula to be guaranteed by the United States, the Soviet Union, Communist China and Japan.

Park, an unyielding anti-Communist and military man, says the next four or five years will be a critical period for South Korea because North Korea is bent on renewing aggression against the South. He has campaigned hard on the theme that an opposition victory would invite political chaos.

With sunny spring weather throughout the nation, 63 per cent of the 15.5 million eligible voters had cast ballots three hours before the polls closed, and an 85 per cent turnout was predicted.

Home Minister Park Kyung-won said the election was proceeding peacefully, but the two major parties hurled charges of election irregularities at each other.

Afghan Hound Thought Lion

CINCINNATI (AP) — Hamilton County Sheriff's deputies, called to an intersection in suburban Groesbeck Monday after two persons reported seeing "a lion in the road," found two Afghan hounds.

Afghans are long-haired hunting dogs about 26 inches tall. The two dogs were turned over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. An SPCA employee said that the dogs were "very undernourished" and one had lost so much of its long hair "it resembled a lion."

Freak Death Brings Prison Term To Man

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — A Hamilton resident has been sentenced to 1-20 years in the Ohio Penitentiary in the death of a man who suffocated on a denture that became wedged in his throat.

Judge Fred Cramer of the Butler County Common Pleas Court meted the sentence Monday against Paul Stamper, 45. Stamper pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of first-degree manslaughter in the death of Henry Whitlock, 64, of Hamilton last Sept. Whitlock had been robbed.

Stamper had been charged with first-degree murder. A codefendant in the case, Mary Miller, 43, of Hamilton had pleaded guilty to the same manslaughter charge and was placed on probation under supervision of a relative.

Free Clinics Formed As Part Of 'Alternative Society'

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Alternative Society's institutions—free clinics, free universities, free stores—are still young and very dependent on straight society. But they exist, and they serve a large number of disaffected young Americans, as this dispatch, one of a series from the AP Special Assignment Team, discloses.

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The house is warm and airy with high ceilings and spacious rooms and a handsomely carved mantelpiece. It was built in another day, perhaps for another kind of doctor, but it is perfect for Allen.

He plans to turn the old house into a commune—a commune for doctors.

"People are recognizing more and more that to have a new society, you have got to build it," he said, leaning his 6-foot heavily shouldered frame against the mantel.

As he spoke, his hands toyed idly with a half-braided leather belt that dangled from his shoulders at the edge of his flowing black hair.

Allen is hip and 30, an M.D. specializing in internal medicine.

He and two fellow physicians are helping organize Seattle's Country Doctor—a free medical clinic, one of several springing up to join free universities, free stores and other infant institutions of the Alternative Society—that still wobbling attempt by disaffected young Americans to develop ways to live apart from straight society.

Allen has no interest in money—only in making enough to survive. His main interest is the clinic and leading a professional life not as "an economic machine" but as a human being with "medical knowledge to share."

"The way the arrangement is now, doctors are so incredibly overpaid I could work one day a week as a straight doctor and make around $12,000 to $14,000 a year easily. That's how screwed up things are," he said.

"Clinics are a long way from the answer," he said, "but I do see them as building blocks for a new medical system with free laboratories and free X-ray technicians and free radio-technologists and free hospitals and free people."

He laughed, a laugh recognizing that the reality of his vision was a long way off.

Doctors like Allen remain rare. As far as he knows, he is the only one of 72 doctors in his graduating class planning to devote his career to free medicine.

The important thing, he said, is the number of like-minded doctors who are coming out of medical schools after him.

Dr. Julius R. Krevans, dean of the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco, said it is too early to tell just how significant that number will be.

But, he said, there is no question that social awareness is quickening among students and faculty members in the nation's medical schools.

"Before this year, there wasn't a single medical collective in this area. Now you have at least three."

The Seattle Clinic, like virtually all the institutions of the Alternative Society, is directly dependent on the larger society.

Allen, for example, was trained at the University of California. The Country Doctor will operate out of an abandoned city-owned firehouse.

Contributions will be tax deductible because the clinic will have tax-exempt status as a non-profit institution.

Milwaukee's Free Clinic operates in the basement of a Roman Catholic hospital on the East side, close by that city's hip enclave.

The scarcity of doctors to man the free clinics makes continuity in treatment difficult. A young woman, well along in pregnancy, works in a Cambridge movement book store. She praises that city's medical clinic but says her baby will not be delivered by a movement doctor. "I want to be at a hospital where I would have the same doctor for delivery I had all along," she said.

Technical competence—not only in medicine but in auto mechanics—a thinly spread resource in the Alternative Society. Poets abound. Plumbers are scarce.

The People's Free Wheel, a no-charge bus line in Cambridge, Mass., has a disconcerting habit of breaking down as it plies back and forth

Delta Queen Is Delayed; So Is Race

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Tuesday's ninth annual renewal of the riverboat race between the Belle of Louisville and the Delta Queen was thrown into jeopardy Monday night when the Queen was delayed en route upstream from its winter home in New Orleans.

Shallow water in the Ohio River and delays at locks along the way were blamed, said a spokesman for Greene Line Steamers, Inc., owners of the Queen.

She said the remaining locks between Evansville, Ind. and Louisville had been alerted in hopes the Queen would be given priority passage and thus be able to make up some of the six to seven hours it had fallen behind schedule.

Capt. Ernest Wagner, the Delta Queen's skipper, said Monday night, "She's running wide open. We sure hope to be there."

Wagner suggested that if the Queen doesn't make it to Louisville by the scheduled 6 p.m. starting time the distance of the race might be shortened somewhat.

Clyde Glass, chairman of the Belle's operating board, wouldn't hear of it, however.

"We're not going to change the race course or come down and meet them at the lock," Glass said.

The only concession he said the Belle would make would be to start the race a little late.

The U.S. Coast Guard requires that the race be run in daylight. Glass said the latest the race could begin was 7 p.m. The event normally lasts about an hour and a half.

along Massachusetts Avenue.

The politically minded organizers of the free institutions blame the failures on what they see as the corrupting influence of the larger society—influences that the free institutions are designed to minimize.

But the insulation is far from perfect. The Straight Society is very much a part of the Alternative Society. It supports it.

Rock concerts and people's donations provide some cash and give a sense of community participation. But the hard cash doesn't come from the hip community. It comes from straight people, one way or another.

From the manual "F—the System: How to Live Free in Albuquerque," is an example of how to "trip off":

"One of the best places to eat is your local supermarket. Get a cart and start pushing it around. Throw a few things in occasionally for effect. Meanwhile, you can make sandwiches, eat fruit and cookies, and open a tin or two of smoked oysters. When you're full, leave your cart and split."

Naivete plagues some of the Alternative Society's institutions.

Albuquerque hips opened a free store and stocked it with donated clothing, food and household goods. All were welcome to come and take what they needed in exchange for what they could give.

"We had no restrictions on what people could take so they took everything," said a young woman at the store, which is now not so much a store as a store front movement meeting place with bare shelves and a handful of underground newspapers.

Linking the various experiments together within each community and within the nation is an elaborate communications network.

Most major cities and university towns have alternative newspapers, such as the Chicago Seed, the Milwaukee Kaleidoscope, the Great Speckled Bird in Atlanta or Berkeley's Tribe and Barb.

Many operate as collectives. Tasks rotate. Today's editor-in-chief will be next week's paste-up man. Salaries are paid according to need and the availability of funds. The process is often more important than the product, which leans toward unevenness.

Stores of national interest are circulated through one of several "wire services" with the highly ideological Liberation New Service (LNS) of New York the oldest and largest.

The problems in the Alternative Society are endless, but the institutions are new. Few scholars would pin their reputations on predicting their ultimate fate or impact.

Historian Harvey Goldberg of the University of Wisconsin maintains that the counter-culture and its institutions must be viewed as part of an epochal change sweeping American society.

Truths about the society that long have been kept beneath the rug, he said, are now visible. After a decade of protest and organization a new generation is rising deeply aware of the plight of blacks, Chicanos, Indians, women, the poor.

Its members, Goldberg says, start out with a perspective those who came before had to acquire. Consciousness gets raised another notch. The attack on the old institutions escalates. The counter culture grows as the old shared beliefs lose adherents.

"What holds a society together is a certain cement of loyalty," he said, "and I think that's eroded."

VC Offer U.S. Deserters Help

PARIS (AP) — The Viet Cong offered special protection and unstated rewards Monday to U.S. antiwar servicemen in Vietnam who cross over to its lines out of sympathy for the Communist cause.

The offer was a new attempt to stir rebellion among U.S. forces. It was contained in an order of the day issued to all "South Vietnam People's Liberation Armed Forces" and was distributed here by the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris peace talks. This order instructed all Viet Cong troops in South Vietnam not to fire on surrendering or deserting American soldiers, but to give them "good treatment . . . aid and protection."

Trial Starts At Lancaster

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP) — An all-white jury was to begin hearing testimony Tuesday in the trial of two black Cincinnati men charged in the shooting last August of a Cincinnati policeman.

The trial was moved to Fairfield County Common Pleas Court after defense attorneys argued they could not get a fair trial in Cincinnati.

They had also asked that Fairfield County not be chosen because it has a small black population.

The defendants, Clifford Daventport, 20, and Gerrard Harvey, 21, are charged with shooting Patrolman Edmund Schindler last Aug. 3 as he sat in his patrol car.

Schindler was hospitalized in critical condition, but has since returned to duty.

Gilligan Won't Ask Johnson To Quit OU Post

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan said Monday he would not ask Fred H. Johnson to resign from the Ohio University board of trustees unless such action is warranted by an investigation into OU's business dealings by a special grand jury he expects to call soon.

Gilligan said his official request for the grand jury would not be made until his office had time to study a 112-page report prepared by OU administrators for OU President Claude R. Sowle.

The university's dealings with Johnson have been the subject of numerous newspaper articles recently.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer has said that Johnson, while a trustee, was handling health and accident insurance for more than 5,000 university employees.

Dear Voters,

As the time is drawing near when you will go to the polls and select a man to represent the Democrat Party in the general election in November, I would like to present my record and outlook on life. I have been a successful business man, dealing with local people. I have served the public in offices in Pickaway County and Circleville for twenty-odd years and have tried to see both sides of any questions that have come before me. I have been gladdened by victory and tempered by defeat. I have overcome many serious handicaps and still am able to smile.

As your next Mayor I will promise to act as a public servant not a ruler. I hope to bring a better understanding of the problems of the City to the people and work to arrive at a solution of these that will not necessitate closed door sessions and emergency legislation, as I respect the help and opinions of all. My family has held offices of public trust in Circleville since 1814. I am not against progress or change, however I can see that our services to this new environment are far behind. We are progressing, but we need to upgrade our Departments of Police, Fire, Health and Service at a faster pace than has been done in the past, not just promises and speculations.

My personal creed of life is very simple. I believe in a Supreme Being who will guide and direct you. Every day I try to help some person less blessed than I. If I can only bring a smile, help with a problem, or still a fear in a friend or stranger, I feel this day is well spent. I have lived and believed in this creed for fifty-seven years and will not change under pressure or for any group.

If this is the kind of man you want, vote for John E. Himrod for Mayor of Circleville on May 4, 1971.

Sincerely,
John E. Himrod

Allen has no interest in money—only in making enough to survive. His main interest is the clinic and leading a professional life not as "an economic machine" but as a human being with "medical knowledge to share."

"The way the arrangement is now, doctors are so incredibly overpaid I could work one day a week as a straight doctor and make around $12,000 to $14,000 a year easily. That's how screwed up things are," he said.

"Clinics are a long way from the answer," he said, "but I do see them as building blocks for a new medical system with free laboratories and free X-ray technicians and free hospitals and free people."

He laughed, a laugh recognizing that the reality of his vision was a long way off.

Doctors like Allen remain rare. As far as he knows, he is the only one of 72 doctors in his graduating class planning to devote his career to free medicine.

The important thing, he said, is the number of like-minded doctors who are coming out of medical schools after him.

Dr. Julius R. Krevans, dean of the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco, said it is too early to tell just how significant that number will be.

But, he said, there is no question that social awareness is quickening among students and faculty members in the nation's medical schools.

"Before this year, there wasn't a single medical collective in this area. Now you have at least three."

The Seattle Clinic, like virtually all the institutions of the Alternative Society, is directly dependent on the larger society.

Allen, for example, was trained at the University of California. The Country Doctor will operate out of an abandoned city-owned firehouse. Contributions will be tax deductible because the clinic will have tax-exempt status as a non-profit institution.

Milwaukee's Free Clinic operates in the basement of a Roman Catholic hospital on the East side, close by that city's hip enclave.

The scarcity of doctors to man the free clinics makes continuity in treatment difficult. A young woman, well along in pregnancy, works in a Cambridge movement book store. She praises that city's medical clinic but says her baby will not be delivered by a movement doctor. "I want to be at a hospital where I would have the same doctor for delivery I had all along," she said.

Technical competence—not only in medicine but in auto mechanics—a thinly spread resource in the Alternative Society. Poets abound. Plumbers are scarce.

The People's Free Wheel, a no-charge bus line in Cambridge, Mass., has a discomfiting habit of breaking down as it plies back and forth along Massachusetts Avenue.

The politically minded organizers of the free institutions blame the failures on what they see as the corrupting influence of the larger society—institutions that are designed to minimize.

But the insulation is far from perfect. The Straight Society is very much a part of the Alternative Society. It supports it.

Rock concerts and people's donations provide some cash and give a sense of community participation. But the hard cash doesn't come from the hip community. It comes from straight people, one way or another.

From the manual "F—the System: How to Live Free in Albuquerque," is an example of how to "rip off":

"One of the best places to eat is your local supermarket. Get a cart and start pushing it around. Throw a few things in occasionally for effect. Meanwhile, you can make sandwiches, eat fruit and cookies, and open a tin or two of smoked oysters. When you're full, leave your cart and split."

Naivete plagues some of the Alternative Society's institutions.

Albuquerque hips opened a free store and stocked it with donated clothing, food and household goods. All were welcome to come and take what they needed in exchange for what they could give.

"We had no restrictions on what people could take so they took everything," said a young woman at the store, which is now not so much a store as a store front movement meeting place with bare shelves and a handful of underground newspapers.

Linking the various experiments together within each community and within the nation is an elaborate communications network.

Most major cities and university towns have alternative newspapers, such as the Chicago Seed, the Milwaukee Kaleidoscope, the Great Speckled Bird in Atlanta or Berkeley's Tribe and Barb.

Many operate as collectives. Tasks rotate. Today's editor-in-chief will be next week's paste-up man. Salaries are paid according to need and the availability of funds. The process is often more important than the product, which leans toward unevenness.

Stores of national interest are circulated through one of several "wire services" with the highly ideological Liberation New Service (LNS) of New York the oldest and largest.

The problems in the Alternative Society are endless, but the institutions are new. Few scholars would pin their reputations on predicting their ultimate fate or impact.

Historian Harvey Goldberg of the University of Wisconsin maintains that the counter-culture and its institutions must be viewed as part of an epochal change sweeping American society.

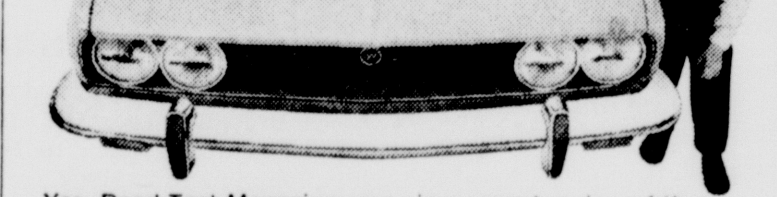

Truths about the society that long have been kept beneath the rug, he said, are now visible. After a decade of protest and organization a new generation is rising deeply aware of the plight of blacks, Chicanos, Indians, women, the poor.

Its members, Goldberg says, start out with a perspective those who came before had to acquire. Consciousness gets raised another notch. The attack on the old institutions escalates. The counter culture grows as the old shared beliefs lose adherents.

"What holds a society together is a certain cement of loyalty," he said, "and I think that's eroded."

VC Offer U.S. Deserters Help

PARIS (AP) — The Viet Cong offered special protection and unstated rewards Monday to U.S. antiwar servicemen in Vietnam who cross over to its lines out of sympathy for the Communist cause.

The offer was a new attempt to stir rebellion among U.S. forces. It was contained in an order of the day issued to all "South Vietnam People's Liberation Armed Forces" and was distributed here by the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris peace talks.

This order instructed all Viet Cong troops in South Vietnam not to fire on surrendering or deserting American soldiers, but to give them "good treatment... aid and protection."

Trial Starts At Lancaster

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP)—An all-white jury was to begin hearing testimony Tuesday in the trial of two black Cincinnati men charged in the shooting last August of a Cincinnati policeman.

The trial was moved to Fairfield County Common Pleas Court after defense attorneys argued they could not get a fair trial in Cincinnati.

They had also asked that Fairfield County not be chosen because it has a small black population.

The defendants, Clifford Dav- enport, 20, and Gerard Harvey, 21, are charged with shooting Patrolman Edmund Schindler last Aug. 3 as he sat in his patrol car.

Schindler was hospitalized in critical condition, but has since returned to duty.

Gilligan Won't Ask Johnson To Quit OU Post

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. John J. Gilligan said Monday he would not ask Fred H. Johnson to resign from the Ohio University board of trustees unless such action is warranted by an investigation into OU's business dealings by a special grand jury he expects to call soon.

Gilligan said his official request for the grand jury would not be made until his office had time to study a 112-page report prepared by OU administrators for OU President Claude R. Sowle.

The university's dealings with Johnson have been the subject of numerous newspaper articles recently.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer has said that Johnson, while a trustee, was handling health and accident insurance for more than 5,000 university employees.

Dear Voters,

As the time is drawing near when you will go to the polls and select a man to represent the Democrat Party in the general election in November, I would like to present my record and outlook on life. I have been a successful business man, dealing with local people. I have served the public in offices in Pickaway County and Circleville for twenty-odd years and have tried to see both sides of any questions that have come before me. I have been gladdened by victory and tempered by defeat. I have overcome many serious handicaps and still am able to smile.

As your next Mayor I will promise to act as a public servant not a ruler. I hope to bring a better understanding of the problems of the City to the people and work to arrive at a solution of these that will not necessitate closed door sessions and emergency legislation, as I respect the help and opinions of all. My family has held offices of public trust in Circleville since 1814. I am not against progress or change, however I can see that our services to this new environment are far behind. We are progressing, but we need to upgrade our Departments of Police, Fire, Health and Service at a faster pace than has been done in the past, not just promises and speculations.

My personal creed of life is very simple. I believe in a Supreme Being who will guide and direct you. Every day I try to help some person less blessed than I. If I can only bring a smile, help with a problem, or still a fear in a friend or stranger, I feel this day is well spent. I have lived and believed in this creed for fifty-seven years and will not change under pressure or for any group.

If this is the kind of man you want, vote for John E. Himrod for Mayor of Circleville on May 4, 1971.

Sincerely,

John E. Himrod

Vermont may prove to be a genuine bellwether state in granting to 18-year-olds the full legal rights that are not now attained until age 21.

Responding to the U. S. Supreme Court's approval of congressional lowering of the voting age to 18 in federal elections, the Vermont legislature not only extended the vote in state elections to the 18s, it also removed the barriers to public drinking and to entering into legal contracts.

Limiting the vote at 18 to federal elections is fundamentally unfair, as well as posing so many expensive problems that the states have no recourse save to grant it in all elections. And with the vote at 18, older teenagers achieve a vitally important right of citizenship.

It follows, therefore, that to seek the counsel of younger citizens in matters so important as elections implies an acceptance of their maturity and the rightness of their claim to the fullness of citizenship.

We already grant the right to marry before 21, to drive a car, to fight in wars; in matters criminal, we treat the 18-20 group as adult offenders, yet in civil matters they cannot sue on their own behalf but only through a "guardian."

Perhaps the time has now come to proclaim that at age 18 a boy becomes a man and a girl becomes a woman, both full citizens with their elders.

No More Gesture

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans has ruled that a young man cannot disown his country when convenient, then claim the privileges of citizenship when that, too, proves convenient.

As a result, Thomas G. Jolley of Georgia faces deportation to Canada, where he fled in 1967 to dodge the draft and formally renounced his citizenship to clinch his flight. He later returned to the United States illegally, according to the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Where this leaves Jolley at the moment is unclear, since he is not a citizen of Canada either. But the ruling properly emphasizes that abandoning citizenship is no mere ceremonial matter. "Those who choose this course to burden" had better be prepared for the U. S. government to take them seriously.

Dear Editor,

An acquaintance of mine recently stated that a letter to the editor was of no value but since she didn't heed her own advice then I feel no obligation to either.

After many, many hours of thinking it all through I feel strongly that one or two "goodies" that currently seem to be making the rounds should be dispelled. No hassle is intended from this angle but a clearing of the air, definitely.

At no time has there been a stated intention of any specific plan be favored in relation to the school over

My utmost concern is the Jackson Junior High and the disadvantages faced by students and faculty. This concern overflows to the high school, too. Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Our two children know no limits in their affection for our dog. They constantly play with him, kiss him and allow him to lick them on the mouth.

Recently it was found that the dog had some kind of intestinal parasite.

Is it possible for him to transmit this to our children? They have not been sick, but we are concerned.

Mr. Mrs. A.B.R., Ga. Dear Mr. and Mrs. R.: A number of parasitic infections in dogs and cats can be transmitted to humans. Because children are not as careful about rules of hygiene, they are, of course, more susceptible.

A particular kind of intestinal parasite, the "nematode," resides in animals who can contaminate the soil where children play.

Children can introduce the parasite directly into their mouths, and thus set up a parasitic infection within themselves.

Prevention, of course, is the ideal way to protect children from contaminated animals.

As for licking, children must be taught to discourage any animals from licking their faces, especially their mouths.

I firmly believe that all household pets should have regular six-month inspections to make sure that they do not harbor any harmful parasites.

Meanwhile, a number of blood tests and studies of the stool can be performed for your children. This will relieve your anxiety and give you the reassurance you need.

I love eggs in any form. I have eaten eggs two or three times a day for years.

Is there any reason why I should stop? My friends tell me that eggs are dangerous for middle-aged people.

Mr. K.B., R.I. Dear Mr. B.: I, too, have a fondness for eggs, although I have never indulged myself to the extent that you have.

I'm afraid you'll have to join the not-too-exclusive club of middle-aged people who have cut down almost completely on this pleasurable food.

Your friends are quite right: The yolks of eggs can contribute markedly to the formation of cholesterol and its accumulation in the blood.

Moreover, cholesterol may be responsible for arteriosclerosis of the blood vessels.

You are wise to listen to your friends; you will be even wiser to consult your doctor. Never use milk bottles and soda pop bottles to hold cleaning fluids and insecticides. Children can become confused and swallow the contents.

Today is Tuesday, April 27, the 117th day of 1971. There are 248 days left in the year.

The Guilty

By JEFFERY HART

Spokesmen for the American Left have been busily drawing up lists of so-called war criminals stretching from Lt. William Calley all the way up to General William Westmoreland and Lyndon B. Johnson and reaching back in time — see, for example, the New York Review of Books — to include John F. Kennedy, Maxwell Taylor, John Foster Dulles and especially Harry Truman, who masterminded the whole thing by launching the Cold War against Russia, the intentions of Stalin in 1945 having been entirely benevolent.

Ever so often, however, one realizes that there may exist a different view of accountability where the Vietnamese war is concerned. Tom Wicker, for example, has expressed the fear that there may be "recreminations" if the war ends badly. He is correct. The American Right has been relatively quiet, feeling instinctively that you don't begin divisive arguments at home while the shooting is still going on. It would be naive to think, however, that there does not exist a deep and pervasive sense of outrage on the Right, and beyond the Right, over the way the war has been handled since the major escalation in 1964.

In the first place, outrage is surely justified over a national leadership that places half a million American troops in South Vietnam and then surrounds them with restrictions that make it nearly impossible for them to prevail. Why, for example, wasn't the Ho Chi Minh trail closed six years ago? Does it make any sense at all for our troops and those of our ally to be fighting a war while just across the border of a semi-fictional country like Laos thousands of Soviet trucks and an anti-army of coolies deliver the where-withal to the enemy?

It is absurd to suppose that the trial network could not be closed. If Tehephone, for example, is a vital junction town, why does the place still exist? And surely stretches of the network could have been rendered impassable by, say, salting them with radioactive material, which would dissipate in a decade or so. It is outrageous that Americans have been asked to fight and die while the government refused to bring the full weight of American power and especially technology to bear on the enemy.

Johnson seems likely to go down as the worst President since U.S. Grant, and this may slander Grant. Under the guns-and-butter formula, while LBJ was mismanaging the war with one hand he was wrecking the economy with the other, rolling up gigantic inflationary deficits through an unwillingness to curtail grandiose "Great Society" welfarist spending. When you contemplate intellectual bankruptcy on this scale, Grant and Warren G. Harding begin to look like effective statesmen.

In 1936 when his nationalist armies were attacking Madrid, General Emilio Mola remarked that he had five columns in action, four advancing outside the city and a fifth column inside, undercutting the defenders. Ho Chi Minh and General Giap could have said the same thing. When a final accounting of "guilt" in connection with the war is made, the role played by the media and by a substantial part of the intellectual community should not be forgotten. Biased and frequently disingenuous news coverage, the glorification of protest, the irrationality and hysteria that have flourished in the academy, the unforgivable exploitation of the Calley case — perhaps the surprising thing is not that the war has been botched, but that the Communists have not long since held their victory parade in Saigon.

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman
CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

On Thursday, the House passed an amendment to the so-called Public Works Acceleration Act of 1962 allegedly for the purpose of stimulating the construction of government public works projects. The idea behind the move is to increase employment and to aid municipalities in providing water and sewage treatment plants, hospitals and other public buildings. The bill would authorize $2 billion for this program.

In the same bill, the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 was amended to provide improved federal help to community areas and regions which suffer from excessive unemployment by providing financial and technical assistance to create new jobs. The objective here is long-range planning and programming for economic development. Another $1.5 billion would be authorized over the next two years for this part of the bill.

A third provision of the bill would authorize $1.5 billion over the next six years to continue a program designed to open Appalachia areas to industry through road construction and other federal aids.

The Administration opposed the $2 billion accelerated public works program but House Members voted to retain it. The Administration's position is that such a program would require several months to get started and it would do little to help skilled workers unemployed by aerospace and military cutbacks, ostensibly, the purpose of the program as stated by the sponsors of the amendment during Floor debate. It authorizes $2 billion above the budget. Anyhow, the bill passed and was sent to the Senate for a total authorization of around $3½ billion.

Another bill which would hopefully aid the economy and reduce unemployment is one which came from the Banking and Currency Committee on Thursday. It would increase from $2.2 billion to $3.1 billion the amount of loans which the Small Business Administration may have outstanding in its loan and investment revolving fund.

The purpose of Small Business Administration loans is to provide assistance to individuals who desire to establish a small business concern. The program has great potential in helping stimulate the economy in depressed neighborhoods.

Some time ago, a Government Accounting Office report came across my desk which related

Congressional activity is increasing as we get more into the 92nd Congress. In addition to Committee hearings, which we had each morning this week, and Floor activity, there were many groups in the office advocating legislative goals.

In Banking and Currency, in addition to increasing the insuring authority of the Small Business Administration, hearings are being conducted on bills which would greatly reform the banking industry.

We met with representatives from the Ohio Milk Producers Association, the Columbus Building and Construction Trades Council, the National Alliance of Postal and Federal Employees, representatives from the Communication Workers of America, the International Paper Company, the Ohio Insurance Institute and the Vietnam Veterans Against the War.

We welcome representatives of various lobbying groups, as they are generally more knowledgeable about subjects proposed and legislation affecting them than anyone else. This, of course, does not mean that we necessarily accept what they say as gospel, but I have found that discussing various subjects and legislative proposals with groups industry is an excellent starting point to knowledge.

As far as the elementary goes I walk down the middle of the road until as said, there are more facts and figures available to make a logical decision.

My utmost concern is the Jackson Junior High and the disadvantages faced by students and faculty. This concern overflows to the high school, too. Not to be forgotten are the sixth graders, although it is my understanding adjustments have been made without strain.

Anyway you slice it, the bell tolls the same refrain — facts and figures!

Objectively yours,

Try and Stop Me

TWO ILL-STARRED musicals folded inside of a fortnight on Broadway recently, causing total losses in both cases of investments of close to $600,000. Show biz bible, Variety, headlined the story of these misadventures, "Oh, those aching back-ers!"

Ivan Yorick is circulating the sad saga of the supply sergeant in the Soviet Quartermaster Corps who, his mind obviously unhinged by a copy of a revolutionary tract called "A Treasury of Atrocious Puns" that had been smuggled into his lair by capitalist pigs, snarled to an underling, "Cut out your Stalin and get that fresh bed Lenin into this depot on the double!" Now, deep in Siberia, the hapless fellow is ardently Vishinsky had kept his trap shut. At least his swearing days are over. He vows he'll never Kosygin! (ALAS! POOR YORICK!)

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Our two children know no limits in their affection for our dog. They constantly play with him, kiss him and allow him to lick them on the mouth.

Recently it was found that the dog had some kind of intestinal parasite.

Is it possible for him to transmit this to our children? They have not been sick, but we are concerned.

Mr. Mrs. A.B.R., Ga. Dear Mr. and Mrs. R.: A number of parasitic infections in dogs and cats can be transmitted to humans. Because children are not as careful about rules of hygiene, they are, of course, more susceptible.

A particular kind of intestinal parasite, the "nematode," resides in animals who can contaminate the soil where children play.

Children can introduce the parasite directly into their mouths, and thus set up a parasitic infection within themselves.

Prevention, of course, is the ideal way to protect children from contaminated animals.

As for licking, children must be taught to discourage any animals from licking their faces, especially their mouths.

I firmly believe that all household pets should have regular six-month inspections to make sure that they do not harbor any harmful parasites.

Meanwhile, a number of blood tests and studies of the stool can be performed for your children. This will relieve your anxiety and give you the reassurance you need.

I love eggs in any form. I have eaten eggs two or three times a day for years.

Is there any reason why I should stop? My friends tell me that eggs are dangerous for middle-aged people.

Mr. K.B., R.I. Dear Mr. B.: I, too, have a fondness for eggs, although I have never indulged myself to the extent that you have.

I'm afraid you'll have to join the not-too-exclusive club of middle-aged people who have cut down almost completely on this pleasurable food.

Your friends are quite right: The yolks of eggs can contribute markedly to the formation of cholesterol and its accumulation in the blood.

Moreover, cholesterol may be responsible for arteriosclerosis of the blood vessels.

You are wise to listen to your friends; you will be even wiser to consult your doctor.

Never use milk bottles and soda pop bottles to hold cleaning fluids and insecticides. Children can become confused and swallow the contents.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, April 27, the 117th day of 1971. There are 248 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1941, Athens fell to German invaders after 180 days of heroic Greek resistance in World War II.

On this date: In 1521, the Portuguese navigator, Ferdinand Magellan, was killed by natives in the Philippines.

In 1791, the inventor of the telegraph, Samuel F.B. Morse, was born in Charlestown, Mass.

In 1822, the 18th American president, Ulysses S. Grant, was born in Point Pleasant, Ohio.

In 1906, the United States Steel Corp. broke ground along Lake Michigan for construction of a new city—Gary, Ind.

In 1945, in World War II, American and Soviet troops met at the Elbe River, cutting Germany in two.

In 1965, U.S. Navy ships moved close to the Dominican Republic to evacuate U.S. citizens endangered by a revolution.

Ten years ago — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro told 1,000 Cuban exiles captured in the Bay of Pigs invasion that he would seek clemency for them.

Five years ago — Pope Paul VI and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko conferred at the Vatican in the first meeting between a Roman Catholic Pope and a high Soviet official.

One year ago — The Cuban government claimed that a small invasion of the island had been crushed and all 13 mercenaries killed or captured.

The Guilty

By JEFFERY HART

Spokesmen for the American Left have been busily drawing up lists of so-called war criminals stretching from Lt. William Calley all the way up to General William Westmoreland and Lyndon B. Johnson and reaching back in time — see, for example, the New York Review of Books — to include John F. Kennedy, Maxwell Taylor, John Foster Dulles and especially Harry Truman, who masterminded the whole thing by launching the Cold War against Russia, the intentions of Stalin in 1945 having been entirely benevolent.

Ever so often, however, one realizes that there may exist a different view of accountability where the Vietnamese war is concerned. Tom Wicker, for example, has expressed the fear that there may be "recriminations" if the war ends badly. He is correct. The American Right has been relatively quiet, feeling instinctively that you don't begin divisive arguments at home while the shooting is still going on. It would be naive to think, however, that there does not exist a deep and pervasive sense of outrage on the Right, and beyond the Right, over the way the war has been handled since the major escalation in 1964.

In the first place, outrage is surely justified over a national leadership that places half a million American troops in South Vietnam and then surrounds them with restrictions that make it nearly impossible for them to prevail. Why, for example, wasn't the Ho Chi Minh trail closed six years ago? Does it make any sense at all for our troops and those of our ally to be fighting a war while just across the border of a semi-fictitious country like Laos thousands of Soviet trucks and an anti-army of coolies deliver the wherewithal to the enemy?

It is absurd to suppose that the trial network could not be closed. If Tehephone, for example, is a vital junction town, why does the place still exist? And surely stretches of the network could have been rendered impassable by, say, salting them with radioactive material, which would dissipate in a decade or so. It is outrageous that Americans have been asked to fight and die while the government refused to bring the full weight of American power and especially technology to bear on the enemy.

Johnson seems likely to go down as the worst President since U.S. Grant, and this may slander Grant. Under the guns-and-butter formula, while LBJ was mismanaging the war with one hand he was wrecking the economy with the other, rolling up gigantic inflationary deficits through an unwillingness to curtail grandiose "Great Society" welfare spending. When you contemplate intellectual bankruptcy on this scale, Grant and Warren G. Harding begin to look like effective statesmen.

In 1936 when his nationalist armies were attacking Madrid, General Emilio Mola remarked that he had five columns in action, four advancing outside the city and a fifth column inside, undercutting the defenders. Ho Chi Minh could have said the same thing. When a final accounting of "guilt" in connection with the war is made, the role played by the media and by a substantial part of the intellectual community should not be forgotten. Biased and frequently disingenuous news coverage, the glorification of protest, the irrationality and hysteria that have flourished in the academy, the unforgivable exploitation of the Calley case — perhaps the surprising thing is not that the war has been botched, but that the Communists have not long since held their victory parade in Saigon.

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

On Thursday, the House passed an amendment to the so-called Public Works Acceleration Act of 1962 allegedly for the purpose of stimulating the construction of government public works projects. The idea behind the move is to increase employment and to aid municipalities in providing water and sewage treatment plants, hospitals and other public buildings. The bill would authorize $2 billion for this program.

In the same bill, the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 was amended to provide improved federal help to community areas and regions which suffer from excessive unemployment by providing financial and technical assistance to create new jobs. The objective here is long-range planning and programming for economic development. Another $1.5 billion would be authorized over the next two years for this part of the bill.

A third provision of the bill would authorize $1.5 billion over the next six years to continue a program designed to open Appalachia areas to industry through road construction and other federal aids.

The Administration opposed the $2 billion accelerated public works program but House Members voted to retain it. The Administration's position is that such a program would require several months to get started and it would do little to help skilled workers unemployed by aerospace and military cutbacks, ostensibly, the purpose of the program as stated by the sponsors of the amendment during Floor debate. It authorizes $2 billion above the budget. Anyhow, the bill passed and was sent to the Senate for a total authorization of around $5 1/2 billion.

Another bill which would hopefully aid the economy and reduce unemployment is one which came from the Banking and Currency Committee on Thursday. It would increase from $2.2 billion to $3.1 billion the amount of loans which the Small Business Administration may have outstanding in its loan and investment revolving fund.

The purpose of Small Business Administration loans is to provide assistance to individuals who desire to establish a small business concern. The program has great potential in helping stimulate the economy in depressed neighborhoods.

Some time ago, a Government Accounting Office report came across my desk which related

Congressional activity is increasing as we get more into the 92nd Congress. In addition to Committee hearings, which we had each morning this week, and Floor activity, there were many groups in the office advocating legislative goals.

In Banking and Currency, in addition to increasing the insuring authority of the Small Business Administration, hearings are being conducted on bills which would greatly reform the banking industry.

We met with representatives from the Ohio Milk Producers Association, the Columbus Building and Construction Trades Council, the National Alliance of Postal and Federal Employees, representatives from the Communication Workers of America, the International Paper Company, the Ohio Insurance Institute and the Vietnam Veterans Against the War.

We welcome representatives of various lobbying groups, as they are generally more knowledgeable about subjects proposed and legislation affecting them than anyone else. This, of course, does not mean that we necessarily accept what they say as gospel, but I have found that discussing various subjects and legislative proposals with groups industry is an excellent starting point to knowledge.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Long-Distance Affair Not Good Idea

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a very attractive man I would like very much to see more often. He lives in Manhattan and I live about 60 miles out in Long Island. He doesn't own a car, but I do. He has told me he would like to date me more often, but he can't see himself taking the Long Island Railroad back to Manhattan in the wee hours of the morning after seeing me home. This I can understand.

He suggested that we enjoy the evening together in Manhattan, where he will provide suitable overnight lodging for me, and the next day he will take me home. I am 25 and he is 28. I am interested in your ideas on how this situation could be improved.

ANXIOUS

DEAR ANXIOUS: If you live on Long Island and work on Long Island, you're a dead Long Island duck unless you get a job in Manhattan and live there!

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago my husband had an affair with another woman. It lasted about a year. I found out about it and forgave him on the promise that he would be faithful to me from that day on.

Things have been going smoothly since then and I'm sure he is keeping his promise, but I am going out of my mind trying to figure out who the woman was. I keep thinking it was this one and that one, but I have no way of really knowing. I have begged my husband to tell me who she was. I even promised I would never say a word to her. My curiosity is killing me. My husband says he will not tell me so I should stop asking him. Don't you think he should tell me?

STILL GUESSING
DEAR GUESSING: No! And if you are wise, you'll let sleeping dogs lie. (And quit guessing. There's only one thing that could be worse than guessing wrong. And that's guessing right.)

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding, or perhaps I should say my mother is planning it. It started out to be a small church wedding, but by the time my parents included all their friends and my father's business associates, it grew and grew and really got out of hand.

My biggest problem is whom I shall have for my bridesmaids. I have no sisters, but I have several cousins my age as well as some very close girl friends. My mother says I absolutely must have my fiancé's two sisters. I like them, but I hardly know them, as they live in another city and my fiancé assures me that they wouldn't feel hurt if they were asked. He says it's my wedding and I should do as I please. I would like your opinion.

BLUE BRIDE
DEAR BRIDE: I can think of no occasion which should bring joy, but instead creates more hard feelings than a wedding! I agree. It's your wedding and you should be allowed to do as you please. If parents would let their marrying children plan their own weddings, they would cost less and mean more.

DEAR ABBY: I noted in your column the pros and cons of going braless. A few weeks ago I saw a small item in the newspaper, which may help to settle the matter. It read as follows: If a woman is not certain whether or not she should go braless, she should place a pencil under her bosom. If the pencil stays there she should wear a bra.

I would sign my name but my wife still has my pencil.
SEATTLE READER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Accusing the health insurance industry of "failure to serve the people," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy Monday urged adoption of his plan to cover all Americans under one federal health insurance policy.

The Massachusetts Democrat was he leadoff witness at three days of Senate Finance Committee hearings on several different health care proposals, including a health partnership plan of the Nixon administration.

Other first-day witnesses were Elliot L. Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare; Sen. Clifford P. Hansen, R-Wyo., and Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott.

The Kennedy plan would cover every individual living in the United States for all health services for the prevention and treatment of illness and medical rehabilitation. It would be funded partly from the general U.S. Treasury and partly out of a payroll tax of 3.5 per cent on employers and 1 per cent on employees.

Kennedy, chairman of a separate Health subcommittee, said in his prepared testimony two months of hearings by his panel showed "gross waste and inefficiency" contributing to soaring costs of health care.

"We have heard testimony," he said, "that hospitals are used unnecessarily because insurance covers hospitalization but not outpatient care. We have heard that costly hospital facilities, such as open heart surgery units, are built for prestige reasons, and then paid for by insurance companies."

Replacing him with Frank McGee obviously will change the character and pace of the long-running program. McGee's successor as one of NBC's early evening news trio will be announced later.

McGee's new assignment seems to reflect the network news department's concern about increasing competition from ABC's news team of Harry Reasoner and Howard K. Smith, whose ratings are climbing.

Hospital charges have tripled in the past decade and physicians fees have risen by 150 per cent, Kennedy said.

"We have heard strong evidence that the insurance industry has neither the ability nor the will to control costs or promote efficiency in the health system," he said. "They take the path of least resistance. They simply raise their premiums to cover the inefficiency and inflation."

Kennedy said that under his proposed Health Security Act the federal government would effect controls on costs by requiring adherence to budgets and through annual reviews to eliminate costly and duplicative facilities and to base new construction on area-wide planning.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When a fare held him up, a Miami Beach cabdriver handed over $43, looked steadily into the gun barrel, and swore he had no more cash.

The gunman lowered the gun, peeled off two single bills, and returned the $2 to Julius Grossman, 39. "Can't leave a guy broke," said the gunman. "Drive off and don't look back."

Views on Television

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's original musical Monday night, based on Al Capp's comic strip character L'il Abner, stacks up as the first attempt to fight pollution with song, dance and comedy.

It was a weird combination of fantasy, satire, "Beverly Hills" accents, some good choreography and occasionally a catchy tune. Unfortunately, it didn't hang together.

The Dogpatch characters were out in force and in faithfully reproduced costumes—L'il Abner, Daisy Mae, Mammy and Pappy Yokum. Then it went straight — and confusingly — into something like childhood classics. A witch gathered some Filthy Glops into her cave and they were scheming to destroy the world with pollution.

All this was accompanied by jokes referring to Henny Yungman, Spiro Agnew watches and prime-time television customs, plus a background of loud laughter that only could have been achieved by an audience of relatives of the cast.

There were obviously some problems about how to wind things up, so somebody like Miss America was introduced at the end, and she brought a giant vacuum cleaner that scooped up the Filthy Glops and ended the pollution problem.

Since pollution is not funny, and since we have been over-exposed recently to the Dogpatch variety of entertainment—"Hee-Haw" is a prime example—the whole thing tended to leave the viewer cold—navy, frostbitten.

Ervin Fighting Integration Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. moved Monday to knock out all language from a $1.5 billion school desegregation bill authorizing some of the money for Catholic and other religious schools.

The North Carolina Democrat, considered one of the Senate's leading constitutional experts, contends such use of federal money not only would violate the First Amendment but be bad policy.

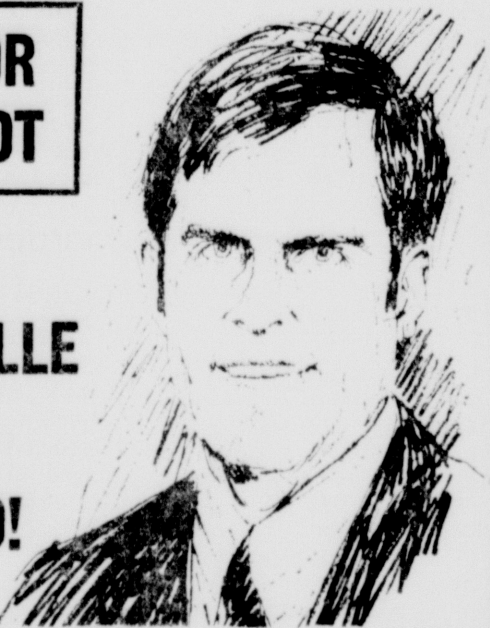

His effort was not given much chance and neither were his other amendments aimed at busing plans used to desegregate Southern schools under court order.

CHS To Graduate 5 In New Course

By MICHELE HULSE
Herald Staff Writer

Educators today are more and more aware of the need for different training techniques for each individual child according to his interests and abilities.

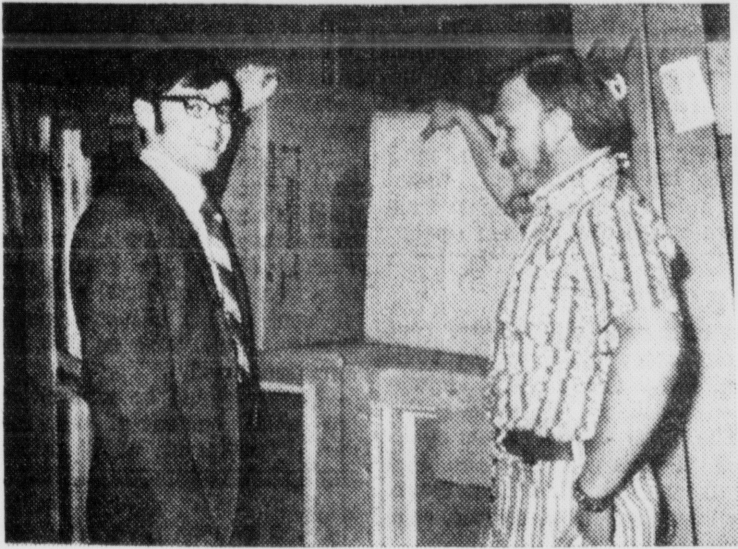

Schools of today cannot simply offer versions of the Three R's and expect to produce a young man or woman who is prepared to take an active part in the world around them.

High schools now are seeking special vocational training centers, expanded curriculum areas, more varied courses of study, increased guidance for each student to mold his education to his own needs. Certain basics are required, but by the final three years of public schooling a student can fairly well realize his own learning capacities.

The Circleville City School system has recognized this specialized need of some students. That is why it has offered for the past three years a new Work-Study program at the high school.

TWENTY students are enrolled in the special program, and, on May 27, five of these will become the first graduates of the course.

To learn, a person must have some incentive, even if only a sense of self-achievement. Regular high school offerings in their "general" course may lack appeal to some youngsters who experience learning handicaps. They also may not see any future for themselves in a high school auto shop, wood-working or home economic course. These are most often the students who give up or drop out.

If a student feels he cannot make it in school, a sense of failing may obsess him — in his work, his life, his family and in his entire future.

That is why Circleville instituted the Work-Study program three years ago. A teenager, or any person for that matter, must feel his work is accomplishing some purpose and that purpose should be tangible. This is the aim of the new program.

Twelve sophomores, three juniors and five seniors are now taking part in the Work-Study course in an attempt to discover this sense of accomplishment in building for their futures.

Seniors in the class hold full-time jobs and meet at arranged times for seminars with their classmates. Their formal book-learning in a school building ended as juniors.

JUNIORS have a half-day of class where they study English, history, Work-Study and Vocational Education. Those who successfully seek employment are excused for a half-day.

A sophomore enrolled in the program must study English, science, history and math in addition to vocational training. One course is an elective, where the student chooses to take

This activity is coordinated by Mort Stein, a first-year teacher in the high school staff. Stein works hard at giving his students a first-hand view of life outside the confines of the home and school to prepare them for business and life on their own. Some of this involves in student sharing of experiences they have had with job problems, successes, and competition.

He tells them about local government in areas that are closest to them. "How do you get the city to repair the street in front of your house?" he asks. Then the discussion advances.

Stein allows the students to handle themselves in their seminars. He believes that peer criticism is more valuable than any comments he might make. If three of his students will tell another that he could use a haircut and some more suitable or sensible clothes, the impact is greater than if the teacher comments on it. This teaches the students, too, to accept criticism and learn methods of administering the same.

CLASSES are small to allow more person-to-person contact, long claimed a better teaching method.

Consider the value of the program to the students themselves. One boy, Norman Davis, will graduate this year. He is employed in a full-time position as back line supervisor at Burger Chef. He is a qualified operator of all the equipment in the store, even in its cleaning and repair.

Norman was recently selected by his employers to go to Muncie, Ind. and train people in a new store there. He also trains new staff members here in Circleville.

Domestic work occupies Linda Roote's time. Linda works with Mr. and Mrs. Harley W. Brown and Charlie Wilson at the Monticello Motel, south of Circleville on Route 23. Her morning hours are spent cleaning, making beds, changing linens in the 28 unit motel.

Jim Moody recently obtained a job at Sturm and Dillard Co. where he primarily works with block manufacturing equipment. Prior to this he was a hired hand at the Dowler Farm Market on Route 23.

Each student is encouraged to seek employment on his own. Stein may survey employers for interest before sending two or three of his students for an interview. They are in competition with each other to sell themselves for the job, just as in any interview. Sometimes one will be picked. Other instances none will be accepted.

If they fail, they return to the class where the entire group discusses possible areas in which the youth may have scored low. Corrections taken into consideration, he then makes arrangements for another interview at another place and, perhaps, will find success. Each "success" is the student's own.

Richard Connelley now works as stocker and carry out boy at Super-Duper. His earnings from this will pay his tuition at a vocational training school in Lexington, Ky.

All the students are trained in budgeting, planned savings and job planning.

If a student experiences a limited ability to retain things, he is not prepared for a college-gear education course. To progress and find success, he must be made to feel he is needed.

Circleville's Work-Study program is geared to this feeling of some students' need for "relevance" in their studies.

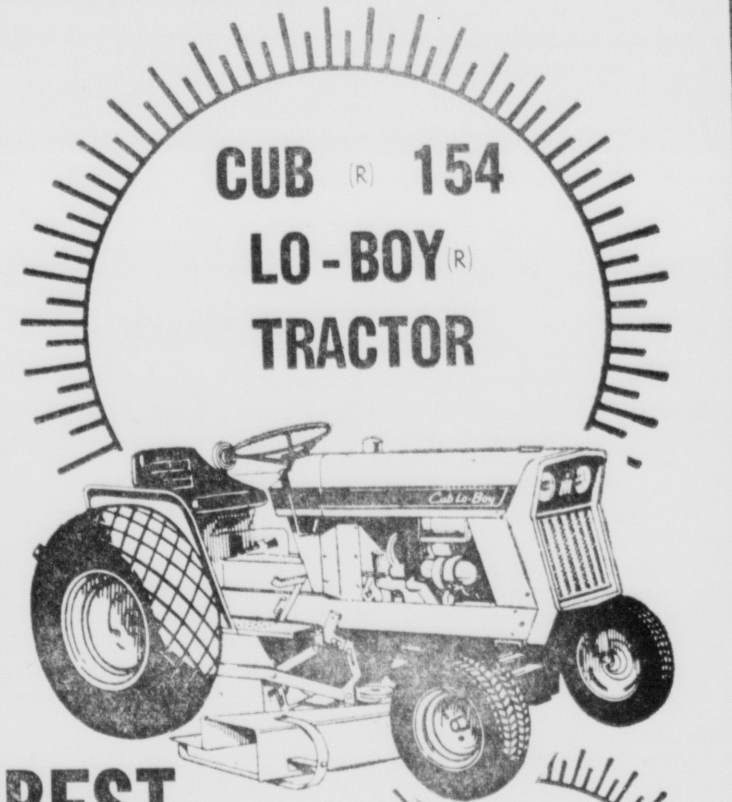

Fire Destroys Stock, Barns

A fire of undetermined origin destroyed three buildings, killed 50 head of cattle and three hogs on a farm north of New Holland Sunday afternoon. The farm is owned by D. H. Roth of New Holland and is farmed by Earl Campbell.

A passing motorist spotted the blaze 2:12 p.m. and alerted New Holland Fire Department. Sixteen firemen fought the blaze two hours in an attempt to keep flames from spreading to a nearby field.

Loss, partly covered by insurance, has not yet been determined. Destroyed were 19 purebred Hereford cows, 12 calves and 19 feeder cattle ready for market. Several other cows, severely burned, had to be destroyed. The loss also included equipment, machinery, hay, straw and grain.

The fire went unnoticed by the Campbells who live in the farm's main house located about a mile from the barns.

Stein works hard at giving his students a first-hand view of life outside the confines of the home and school to prepare them for business and life on their own. Some of this involves in student sharing of experiences they have had with job problems, successes, and competition.

He tells them about local government in areas that are closest to them. "How do you get the city to repair the street in front of your house?" he asks. Time the discussion advances.

Stein allows the students to handle themselves in their seminars. He believes that peer criticism is more valuable than any comments he might make. If three of his students will tell another that he could use a haircut and some more suitable or sensible clothes, the impact is greater than if the teacher comments on it. This teaches the students, too, to accept criticism and learn methods of administering the same.

CLASSES are small to allow more person-to-person contact, long claimed a better teaching method.

Consider the value of the program to the students themselves. One boy, Norman Davis, will graduate this year. He is employed in a full-time position as back line supervisor at Burger Chef. He is a qualified operator of all the equipment in the store, even in its cleaning and repair.

Norman was recently selected by his employers to go to Muncie, Ind. and train people in a new store there. He also trains new staff members here in Circleville.

Domestic work occupies Linda Roote's time. Linda works with Mr. and Mrs. Harley W. Brown and Charlie Wilson at the Monticello Motel, south of Circleville on Route 23. Her morning hours are spent cleaning, making beds, changing linens in the 28 unit motel.

Jim Moody recently obtained a job at Sturm and Dillard Co. where he primarily works with block manufacturing equipment. Prior to this he was a hired hand at the Dowler Farm Market on Route 23.

Each student is encouraged to seek employment on his own. Stein may survey employers for interest before sending two or three of his students for an interview. They are in competition with each other to sell themselves for the job, just as in any interview. Sometimes one will be picked. Other instances none will be accepted.

If they fail, they return to the class where the entire group discusses possible areas in which the youth may have scored low. Corrections taken into consideration, he then makes arrangements for another interview at another place and, perhaps, will find success. Each "success" is the student's own.

Richard Connoley now works as stocker and carry out boy at Super-Duper. His earnings from this will pay his tuition at a vocational training school in Lexington, Ky.

All the students are trained in budgeting, planned savings and job planning.

If a student experiences a limited ability to retain things, he is not prepared for a college-educated education course. To progress and find success, he must be made to feel he is needed.

Circleville's Work-Study program is geared to this feeling of some students' need for "relevance" in their studies.

Fire Destroys Stock, Barns

A fire of undetermined origin destroyed three buildings, killed 50 head of cattle and three hogs on a farm north of New Holland Sunday afternoon. The farm is owned by D. H. Roth of New Holland and is farmed by Earl Campbell.

A passing motorist spotted the blaze 2:12 p.m. and alerted New Holland Fire Department. Sixteen firemen fought the blaze two hours in an attempt to keep flames from spreading to a nearby field.

Loss, partly covered by insurance, has not yet been determined. Destroyed were 19 purebred Hereford cows, 12 calves and 19 feeder cattle ready for market. Several other cows, severely burned, had to be destroyed. The loss also included equipment, machinery, hay, straw and grain.

The fire went unnoticed by the Campbells who live in the farm's main house located about a mile from the barns.

Protesters Interrupt Senate By Shouts, Demonstrations

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the Senate of the United States, where a whispered conversation can bring a rebuke, a young man, his red shirt emblazoned with the Viet Cong insignia, jumped to his feet and shouted: "Stop the war."

All he stopped was the call of the roll, and that for only a moment.

Dignitary Bible Given To Mayor

Pickaway County Camp of Gideons International held its annual Pastor's Banquet Saturday night at the L-K Restaurant with approximately 100 Gideons and ministers present.

Edward Blankenship, state vice president, presented a special dignitary Bible to the honorable Mayor Richard Gerhardt. The Mayor expressed appreciation for the Gideons and the Bible itself as a book he would refer to and place on his office desk.

The Rev. Ronnie Peters, of Bowersville, presented a testimony of how Christ found him through a Gideon Bible in a Chicago penal institution 20 years ago.

Robert Patesel, a state cabinet officer, was the banquet speaker. He gave an account of the Gideon work in 87 countries around the world by illustration of lives that had been changed.

Gideons from various parts of the state were present on Sunday morning to fill the pulpits of 34 churches in Pickaway and southern Franklin counties. They gave reports to the churches of the results of the Gideon ministry.

Willard England, president of the Pickaway County Camp, presided at the meeting.

Bussert, news reporter; Jeannie Moorehead, historian and Sandy Drake, song leader.

Members also discussed the state FHA convention and various money-making projects.

ment while guards led him from the gallery.

So it was, in the Senate, on a Monday that blended the grotesque and the routine.

There were stern lectures to the galleries when youthful demonstrators, in denim, khaki and burlap, interrupted the debate with shouts and at one point, wailing.

But more often, the calls for order were addressed to chatting senators whose conversations made it difficult at times for colleagues to hear.

"Mr. President, may we have order," said Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the Democratic Whip and guardian of decorum. That is everyday procedure, part of the routine. The gavel sounded, the chamber grew quiet.

The Senate was debating, and finally passed, a $1.5-billion bill designed to ease the course of school desegregation. It took six roll-call votes before galleries that for most of the day included a scattering of demonstrators.

Like any tourists, the protesters went to Senate offices to get admission cards. Nine of them shouted their protests at the floor and were arrested.

"What about the children in Vietnam? shouted a disheveled youth in a denim jacket. He added an obscenity. "You're a bunch of fools," he said.

"I demand that the galleries be cleared," said Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., presiding amid the first shouts, refused. But he said guards should usher out those who shouted.

The session went on, but a half hour later, another series of shouts. At that point, Byrd demanded that everyone be cleared from the two galleries involved.

Later, about a dozen demonstrators entered the gallery burlap sacks over their shirts, and began writhing in mock agony as if victims of the war, sobbing silently, wiping at their faces. Nobody on the floor paid any attention.

But the guards and gallery attendants did. As the protesters left they wailed and cried out in mock pain, forcing another pause in the debate.

Then the routine took over. The bill passed, the Senate recessed until Thursday for lack of business. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the recess had nothing to do with the protests—which he said could well prove counter-productive.

NEW YORK (AP) — The national board of directors of the Boys Clubs of America Monday night named four new members.

They were Charles E. Ide Jr., Toledo, Ohio, attorney; John Magoon, president of Hawaiian Airlines; Robert E. Peterson, owner of the Peterson Publishing Co., Los Angeles, and George J. Palino, executive director of the Binghamton, N.Y. Boys Club.

The four were elected at the board's semi-annual meeting here. The national board directs the activities of clubs in some 600 communities in 47 states and Puerto Rico.

'Ohio Plan' Revision Seen As Original Hits Roadblock

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The administration of Gov. John J. Gilligan reportedly plans to introduce a revised "Ohio Plan" to the legislature because of hostile reaction to the original proposal among educators, legislators, parents and students.

The "Ohio Plan" would require students to repay more than $3,200 in state subsidy money after graduating from state-supported institutions.

The principle of repayment survives in the revised legislation, but there are several changes:

—Students from low and moderate income families would be able to secure loans from state retirement system funds.

Western Electric Makes Pay Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Western Electric Co. has offered its employees a 14 per cent wage increase over a three-year period.

The offer, which would include the company's Columbus, Ohio, plant, would total nine per cent the first year and 2.5 per cent each succeeding year. In addition, the package would include a cost-of-living adjustment.

The AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America and Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have sought a 25 per cent increase.

—The provision that would have permitted students to eliminate their subsidy obligation by paying back half of it while still in school has been eliminated because it favored students with money.

—A more progressive repayment schedule has been devised. Repayment would begin when the graduate's income reached $7,500. He would pay $50 a year at that level and two per cent of his adjusted gross income minus $100 as his income increased.

—Minors would be allowed to sign valid contracts and the Ohio Department of Taxation would be responsible for collecting the subsidy repayments.

The administration is also supporting a proposed constitutional amendment that would permit the Student Loan Commission to issue up to $500 million in revenue bonds.

Income from the bonds would be used for student loans and would replace retirement fund money required for loans under the current "Ohio Plan" proposal.

New Mexico is the fifth largest state in area in the United States and has eight persons per square mile.

Tigers Ripped By McClain, 8-0

Circleville ran into a one-hit pitching performance on the part of Greenfield's Paul Howland and dropped an 8-0 decision to the McClain nine in a South Central Ohio League clash Monday on the Red and Black diamond.

Howland gave up a scratch single to Dave Truex, fanned

15 and didn't allow a base on balls in the contest.

Don Valentine was on the mound for Circleville, giving up nine hits, whiffing four and issuing five free passes.

Four errors and several mental lapses on the part of the Red and Black contributed to the loss.

GREENFIELD took the game on ice in the first inning with four tallies and added single runs in the third, fourth, sixth and seventh frames.

Howland displayed great control on the hill and never gave the Red and Black hitters a chance to get anything going at the plate.

Circleville is now 6-3 for the season and 2-3 in SCOL play. They host the Blue Lions of Washington C. H. Wednesday in another SCOL affair.

As for his opposition, of which there will be plenty, Cornell said he thought Jim French was the horse to beat, even though the Santa Anita Derby winner has twice finished behind Eastern Fleet with a third in the Florida Derby and a fourth in the Wood.

John Campo, who trains Jim French for Frank J. Caldwell, agreed that his horse is the one to beat.

Contacted in New York, Campo said Jim French would arrive at Churchill Downs from Belmont Park Wednesday and that he would like to see a field of 15 or less.

The biggest field was 22 in 1928 when Reigh Count won.

Here is a list of the winners:

Smallest Fish - Benny Griffith. Rainbow Trout - first and second, Jerry Bott, Lancaster; third, Granville Ratliff, Brice. Largemouth bass - first, Bill Hoyt, Grove City; second, Jim Gates, Circleville; third, Danny Stevens, Circleville.

Smallmouth bass - first, David Haddock, Circleville. Crappie - first, Renny Berry, Canal Winchester. Carp - first, Granville Ratliff, Brice. Blue Gill - first, Wes Riley, Circleville; second, Billy Forsythe, Kingston; third, Don Beavers, Kingston.

Chicago Black Hawks Seeking Advantage

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Black Hawks are looking to the home ice advantage and Bobby Hull in hopes of gaining the upper hand Tuesday night in their semifinal Stanley Cup series against the New York Rangers.

The Hawks, who lost the edge when they dropped the series opener 2-1 in overtime on their home ice, roared back to tie the best-of-7 series at two games each with a blazing 7-1 triumph at New York Sunday.

North-South Golf Tourney Under Way

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) - As expected the spotlight was focused on Canadian Gary Cowan, the defending champion, and seven members of the U.S. Walker Cup team who won opening round matches in the North and South Amateur Golf Tournament Monday.

However, true to the tradition of the game, an outsider has served notice on the youngsters that the veterans should not be held lightly.

Ray Kimpel, a 46-year-old lawyer from Urbana, Ill., accomplished the day's No. 1 upset by shooting even par in a 3 and 2 victory of Jim Simons, a cup team player from Butler, Pa., and Wake Forest University sophomore.

Kimpel has played here about a half-dozen times previously but never survived beyond the third round.

Before he left for the Pinehurst Country Club to meet Simons, Kimpel and his wife, Betsy, packed their clothes and checked out of their hotel. But they didn't mind having to unpack and Betsy crowded, "I'm going to pack our things again in the morning. I wouldn't mind unpacking every day."

Jim Mayer of Bedford, N.Y., was Kimpel's opponent on today's 32-match second round schedule.

Phoenix Gets Major Bowl; Not Named

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) - College football's crowded post-season family gained a 12th member Monday, as Phoenix, Ariz., was awarded a major bowl game.

Still unnamed, the event at Arizona State University's 51,000-seat stadium will match the champion of the Western Athletic Conference with another collegiate power.

It was the first time since 1968—when Atlanta's Peach Bowl was certified—that the National Collegiate Athletic Association had okayed another post-season game.

"There has been concern about the availability of enough good teams for all the bowls," said Wade Stinson, chairman of the NCAA extra events committee.

"This area of the great Southwest has not been served by a bowl game, and we felt the expansion was in the best interest of the full NCAA membership."

Stinson is athletic director at Kansas University.

Mets Rout St. Louis Cardinals, Win 12-2

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The ailing Gibson suffered his earliest knockout in four years Monday night. The New York Mets routed the St. Louis Cardinals 12-2.

Blue, a hard-throwing 21-year-old southpaw, tamed the world champion Baltimore Orioles on four hits—he had a no-hitter for five innings—and the Oakland A's made off with a 1-0 triumph on Reggie Jackson's RBI single in the sixth inning. Blue became the American League's first five-game winner.

In the only other National League encounter, Philadelphia nipped Houston 2-1 on an eighth-inning tie-breaking home run by Willie Montanez. Elsewhere in the AL, it was California 8, Cleveland 0; Detroit 8, Kansas City, 3; and Minnesota 7, Washington 2. Milwaukee at Boston was rained out.

The New York St. Louis affair was billed as an early season mound classic between Gibson and Tom Seaver. But the Mets jumped on Gibby for two runs in the first inning, one in the third and four in the fourth. Ed Kranepool paced the 17-hit assault with four singles while Tommie Agee had a homer and a double.

Seaver, unbeaten in four decisions while the rest of the Mets' pitching staff has a combined 4-7 mark, breezed with a seven-hitter.

Gibson injured his left knee sliding into a base last season and has had it drained twice. But the Mets weren't about to write off the veteran fireballer, who's won 193 big league games, even though Ken Boyer, a St. Louis coach, said it was "the hardest I've ever seen him hit."

"The first hit I ever got in the majors was off Gibson in 1969," recalled Bob Aspromonte, "and I don't remember many after that. There's no doubt that he's the toughest pitcher I've ever faced."

Blue was in trouble twice against Baltimore. In the fourth, Frank Robinson reached third with one out on Sal Bando's throwing error on Paul Blair's grounder and Brooks Robinson fanned.

In the ninth, Merv Rettenmund and Frank Robinson singled with one down but Blair popped up and Brooks flied out. Blue helped build the game's only run with a bunt single and Bert Campaneris did it when the Orioles let his bunt roll and it stayed fair. Blue was picked off second and Joe Rudi grounded out before Jackson nicked Pat Dobson for the decisive single.

A pair of walks and Deron Johnson's RBI single gave Philadelphia a first-inning run but Houston matched it in the third on Joe Morgan's triple and Jim Wynn's double. Monta-nez then gave Rick Wiso his first 1971 win with his lead off homer in the eighth off Tom Griffin.

California's Rudy May stopped Cleveland on three hits as the Indians suffered their sixth straight loss. Jim Spencer's two-run homer highlighted a four-run uprising in the fifth and the Angels even managed to get two runners home on

Westfall Mustangs Edge Logan Elm 5-3 In SVC

Westfall edged Logan Elm 5-3 in a Scioto Valley Conference baseball game Monday at LEHS.

Ted Musselman was the winning pitcher, scattering nine hits and whiffing five. He did not walk a single batter.

Gary Francis was the losing hurler. The sophomore fanned seven, walked five and gave up four hits.

Westfall has a 6-4-1 record and Logan Elm a 6-5 record. The Braves took a one run lead in the first inning when Gary Francis and Wertie Teets slammed back to back triples with two outs.

THE next scoring was in the top of the fourth when Westfall went ahead 2-1. With one out Mike Peterson reached on an error. Then with two outs John Valone reached on an error. Consecutive singles by Doug McKay and Doug Shannon plated both runners.

In the bottom of the fourth Logan Elm tied the game at 2-2 when Rick Blankenship reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on a single by Mark Justus.

In the top of the fifth Joe Clem was hit by a pitched ball, moved around to third on a stolen base and a passed ball and scored on Peterson's squeeze bunt.

In the top of the sixth Westfall went ahead 5-2 when the first three batters, Valone, McKay and Shannon walked. Valone and McKay then scored on an error and a fielder's choice.

The last run for Logan Elm came in the bottom of the sixth when Blankenship reached on an error, moved to third on a fielder's choice and scored on Steve Fischer's single.

Westfall's four hits included singles by Clem, McKay and Shannon and a double by Larry Harris.

Yacht Whereabouts Proves A Mystery

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) - The whereabouts of 18 yachts in the 500-mile St. Petersburg to Isla Mujeres, Mexico, yacht race was a mystery Monday following a communications blackout.

A scheduled noon report of fleet positions to the race communications boat Incredible drew a blank when her call for fixes went unanswered. At that time, Incredible was 60 miles off the Mexican coast.

Atmospheric conditions were believed responsible for the blackout, and Incredible said no further attempt would be made to make contact with the fleet until today.

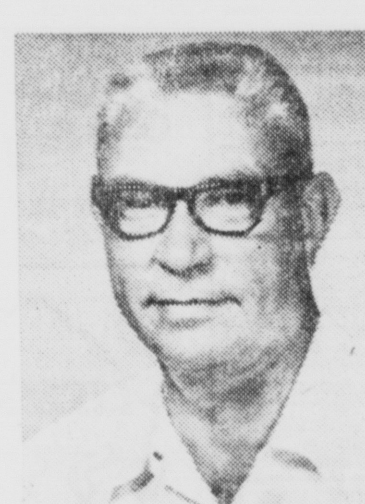

Ken Berry's long sacrifice fly in the eighth.

Detroit snapped a 1-all tie with four runs in the third inning against Kansas City. After a pair of walks, Al Kaline singled home the lead run and another scored on Joe Keough's throwing error. Willie Horton then hammered the first of his two doubles for the third run and scored on Bill Freehan's single.

Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva supported Jim Perry's six-hit pitching with two-run homers as Minnesota whipped Washington. Killebrew also drove in a third run with a single. Perry has beaten the Senators 25 times in 31 lifetime decisions. Frank Howard and Tom McCraw homered for the losers.

Tonight The Braves play at Amanda. Clearcreek while Westfall hosts Zane Trace.

Tigers Ripped By McClain, 8-0

Circleville ran into a one-hit pitching performance on the part of Greenfield's Paul Howland and dropped an 8-0 decision to the McClain nine in a South Central Ohio League clash Monday on the Red and Black diamond.

Howland gave up a scratch single to Dave Truex, fanned

15 and didn't allow a base on balls in the contest.

Don Valentine was on the mound for Circleville, giving up nine hits, whiffing four and issuing five free passes.

Four errors and several mental lapses on the part of the Red and Black contributed to the loss.

GREENFIELD put the game on ice in the first inning with four tallies and added single runs in the third, fourth, sixth and seventh frames.

Howland displayed great control on the hill and never gave the Red and Black hitters a chance to get anything going at the plate.

Circleville is now 6-3 for the season and 2-3 in SCOL play. They host the Blue Lions of Washington C. H. Wednesday in another SCOL affair.

Eastern Fleet Looking Good For Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — If Eastern Fleet runs as well as he did when he finished second in the Wood Memorial, he can bring Calumet Farm its eighth Kentucky Derby victory Saturday.

"If he runs like he did in the Florida Derby and the Wood, he can win," trainer Reggie Cornell said Monday before sending Eastern Fleet and Calumet's other Derby horse, Bold and Able, out for gallops.

He also said he didn't expect another performance from Eastern Fleet like the one he turned in when he finished sixth in last Saturday's seven-furlong Stepping Stone Purse that was won by Bold and Able.

Cornell also said he felt Bold and Able has a chance to win. However, the Derby's 1 1/4 miles appear to be too much for the son of Bold Lad.

As for his opposition, of which there will be plenty, Cornell said he thought Jim French was the horse to beat, even though the Santa Anita Derby winner has twice finished behind Eastern Fleet with a third in the Florida Derby and a fourth in the Wood.

John Campo, who trains Jim French for Frank J. Caldwell, agreed that his horse is the one to beat.

Contacted in New York, Campo said Jim French would arrive at Churchill Downs from Belmont Park Wednesday and that he would like to see a field of 15 or less.

The biggest field was 22 in 1928 when Reigh Count won.

Grid Highlights From The Campus

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out most off-season college football wash:

The Heisman Trophy undoubtedly will be worth a pretty penny to Jim Plunkett when he signs with the New England Patriots. Certainly a little more than the $319.03 spent directly on his behalf by the Stanford sports information office.

Stanford released that figure to put down "rumors" that the school "spent vast sums of money on the promotion of Jim Plunkett." According to sports information director Bob Murphy, "Someone as near by as San Jose pegged the figure at $25,000."

Murphy figures the cost this way. Following the Washington State game last Oct. 17, in which Plunkett broke the NCAA career total offense record, Stanford produced a brochure nominating Plunkett as a Heisman candidate. Initially, 1,000 copies of the four-page, two-color flyer were distributed to key media people around the country at a cost of $268.91.

A few weeks later it became necessary to order 500 more Heisman brochures. That bill ran $50.12. And most of that batch went to Stanford backers and other football fans, not to writers or broadcasters.

Stanford's goal last season was a Pacific-8 crown and the Indians got it. This year, Coach John Ralston has something else in mind.

"It would be easy for some of those on our 1971 squad—and I am including the coaches, too—to approach this season with less intensity and determination than a year ago. Because you have achieved last year's goals, you sometimes make invalid assumptions for the following year," says Ralston.

"Even though we did defeat Ohio State in the Rose Bowl, we lost three games along the way and we were not ranked in the top five nationally. That, then, is our goal for 1971."

On the rumor mill, there's one floating around that Nebraska's national champions are planning to redshirt Orange Bowl QB star Jerry Tagge in favor of alternate Van Brownson and super-soph David Humm. The reasoning is that Tagge, an engineering student, will be around in the fall of 1972 anyway.

Nebraska pool-pools that one. Tagge and Brownson were alternating with the No. 1 unit until the latter suffered a shoulder separation last week and underwent surgery. Humm was directing the second unit.

And now, for the sweetest signing this side of heaven, we call your attention to Clemson University, which has lined up a 240-pound defensive end from Jacksonville, Fla., named, naturally, Guy Lombardo.

Say Scotty Bowman Quit St. Louis Post

REGINA (AP) — The Leader-Post said in a copyright story Monday that Scotty Bowman has resigned as general manager of St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League.

The newspaper said it learned that Bowman resigned in the midst of what appeared to be a power struggle involving hiring authority.

It was reported that Bowman, who has been with the club since it entered the league in 1967, fell into a dispute with a member of the Solomon family which owns the club.

Final ABA Divisional Game Set

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Utah Stars face the Indiana Pacers Wednesday night and 11,000 roaring Indiana fans in the seventh and decisive game of the American Basketball Association West Division playoff.

It took 4½ hours Monday for the Pacer ticket office to sell 9,147 tickets and after a sellout statement by the ticket manager standing room tickets priced at $1 were put on sale. About $1,000 standing room tickets were sold before the office closed Monday, the first day for ticket sales for the final game of the series.

The defending ABA champion Pacers have come back from the brink of disaster. Down by 3 games to one, the Pacers have won the last two contests to even the series 3-3.

Indiana evened the series Saturday night with a 105-102 triumph over the Utah team in Salt Lake City.

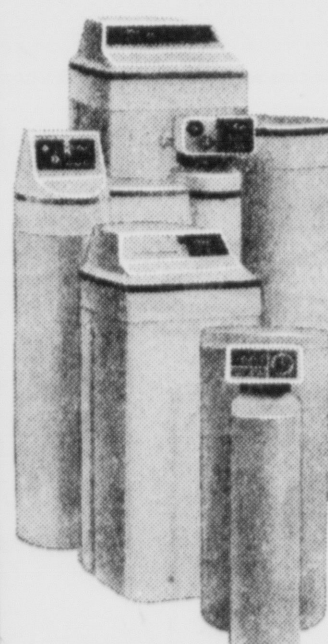

Pride had to be a major motivating factor in Saturday's victory, but Pacer coach Bob Leonard added a psychological boost.

Grid Highlights From The Campus

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out some off-season college football wash:

The Heisman Trophy undoubtedly will be worth a pretty penny to Jim Plunkett when he signs with the New England Patriots. Certainly a little more than the $319.03 spent directly on his behalf by the Stanford sports information office.

Stanford released that figure to put down "rumors" that the school "spent vast sums of money on the promotion of Jim Plunkett." According to sports information director Bob Murphy, "Someone as near by as San Jose pegged the figure at $25,000."

Murphy figures the cost this way. Following the Washington State game last Oct. 17, in which Plunkett broke the NCAA career total offense record, Stanford produced a brochure nominating Plunkett as a Heisman candidate. Initially, 1,000 copies of the four-page, two-color flyer were distributed to key media people around the country at a cost of $268.91.

A few weeks later it became necessary to order 500 more Heisman brochures. That bill ran $50.12. And most of that batch went to Stanford backers and other football fans, not to writers or broadcasters.

Stanford's goal last season was a Pacific-8 crown and the Indians got it. This year, Coach John Ralston has something else in mind.

"It would be easy for some of those on our 1971 squad—and I am including the coaches, too—to approach this season with less intensity and determination than a year ago. Because you have achieved last year's goals, you sometimes make invalid assumptions for the following year," says Ralston.

"Even though we did defeat Ohio State in the Rose Bowl, we lost three games along the way and we were not ranked in the top five nationally. That, then, is our goal for 1971."

On the rumor mill, there's one floating around that Nebraska's national champions are planning to redshirt Orange Bowl QB star Jerry Tagge in favor of alternate Van Brownson and super-soph David Humm. The reasoning is that Tagge, an engineering student, will be around in the fall of 1972 anyway.

Nebraska pooh-poos that one. Tagge and Brownson were alternating with the No. 1 unit until the latter suffered a shoulder separation last week and underwent surgery. Humm was directing the second unit.

And now, for the sweetest signing this side of heaven, we call your attention to Clemson University, which has lined up a 240-pound defensive end from Jacksonville, Fla., named, naturally, Guy Lombardo.

Say Scotty Bowman Quit St. Louis Post

REGINA (AP) — The Leader-Post said in a copyright story Monday that Scotty Bowman has resigned as general manager of St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League.

The newspaper said it learned that Bowman resigned in the midst of what appeared to be a power struggle involving hiring authority.

It was reported that Bowman, who has been with the club since it entered the league in 1967, fell into a dispute with a member of the Solomon family which owns the club.

Senate Passes Integration Aid Bill; Few Restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed the Nixon administration's school-desegregation-aid bill after turning back Southern attempts at restricting federal court powers in integration cases.

The Senate version of the legislation grants President Nixon the $1.5 billion he sought for helping schools desegregate more than a year ago but contains much tighter restrictions on spending the money than he originally wanted.

The administration agreed to the restrictions, however, while the bill was being worked out in a Senate Education subcommittee.

The 74-8 Senate vote Monday sent the legislation to the House.

The bill authorizes $500 million for the fiscal year starting July 1 and $1 billion the following year.

In the closing hours of the six-day debate, Southern senators lost on a series of amendments directly attacking desegregation rulings of federal courts.

A proposal requiring the courts to accept freedom-of-choice plans was rejected 51 to 32. An amendment to bar orders requiring busing of pupils was beaten 46 to 35. And an amendment to require that students be allowed to attend their neighborhood schools lost 48 to 33.

However, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., succeeded in getting into the bill last week a rider requiring the executive branch to follow a uniform national policy in enforcing school desegregation. This lacked implementation machinery and its effect is in doubt. The Senate rejected a broader requirement which would have integrated black inner-city children into suburban schools in all metropolitan areas.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., won last-minute adoption of an amendment providing school districts under court desegregation orders will be eligible for grants under the bill to meet court requirements.

Blaze In Lima Said Costliest In City History

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Officials still don't know what caused the $1 million fire last Friday that destroyed three warehouses of Lawndale Industries, Inc., in Lima. It was the costliest fire in the city's history.

A spokesman for the company said Monday that Lawndale has abandoned thoughts of relocating the facility and have decided to rebuild at the present location. The factory manufactured bath tubs for mobile homes.

The 105 employees put out of work by the fire will be recalled as production resumes. Plant Manager A. H. Watson estimated operations could begin on a part-time basis next week.

There had been reports that the company would shift operations to another plant in Aurora, Ill.

Guard Shot, Bandit Slain In Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — A security guard was being treated today for a wounded leg suffered Monday night before he fatally shot an ex-convict during a robbery attempt at a supermarket here.

The incident was one of three in the area Monday in which a person was shot to death.

Orville Clark, the guard who was off duty as a Cincinnati policeman, was in General Hospital.

John Salzer, 43, of Cincinnati was fatally wounded after he took money from the assistant manager at Kroger store here and exchanged gunfire with Clark while trying to flee the store. Police said that Salzer was released from prison last July after serving an armed robbery term. He had been charged in the robbery of a store here in 1959.

The robbery attempt occurred just before closing hours at the store although no one else was hurt. Windows were shattered by bullets.

In suburban Cheviot, 15-year-old Donald Holton was found with a fatal shotgun wound in the neck shortly after he had wrecked his father's car. Police said they found a suicide note.

Holton apparently escaped injury in the one-car crash in Western Hamilton County but a passenger, David Ackerman, 13, of Cheviot was seriously injured.

In nearby Milford, 32-year-old Paul Lewis of Cincinnati was fatally shot at a mobile home where his estranged wife had been staying. Clermont County police said that Lewis tried to force his way into the trailer. No charges had been filed.

Ohio Penitentiary Inmates Given Calls

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thanks to a program called Project Contact, inmates at the Ohio Penitentiary are making special five-minute calls to loved ones for Mother's Day.

Prisoners began making the calls Monday at five temporary phone booths set up for the project. They are permitted to call anyone on their mailing or visiting lists.

About 1,000 of the prison's 1,800 inmates so far have said they would like to make calls, and prison officials estimate 1,200 will have done so by Mother's Day, May 9.

a heavy belt buckle apparently saved his life when a shot fired by a young man suspected of shoplifting at the Atlantic Thrift Center on the North Side hit the buckle.

Another policeman and the suspect, Wendell Carter of Youngstown, were wounded in an exchange of shots outside the store Monday afternoon.

Patrolman Frederick Green said he arrested the 21-year-old man in the store and the man grabbed the policeman's pistol and fired a shot that hit the belt buckle. The man then struck Green with the gun and fled.

The man ran outside and tried to stop a car at gunpoint, but the car was driven by Patrolman William Tanner, who was arriving to relieve Green as security officer at the store.

Tanner and Carter were wounded in an exchange of shots and the young man then commandeered a woman's car and fled, with her driving.

A motorist picked up Tanner and the two gave chase. They forced the fleeing car to the curb after a chase of several blocks and the suspect was arrested.

Green received an abrasion on the abdomen when the shot hit his belt buckle and lacerations of the scalp when he was hit with the gun. Tanner was shot in the left arm and Carter was wounded in the right side. All were reported in satisfactory condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital Monday night. Carter was under guard.

No charges were filed immediately by police.

Green said he stopped the shoplifting suspect after the assistant manager of the store reported that he saw the young man take a coat without paying for it.

He said he took the man to the office where "the kid admitted he took the coat."

Green said he was writing out a report when the young man grabbed the gun out of his holster and there was a scuffle for the weapon.

He said a shot was fired during the scuffle, but it went into the floor.

"He then put the gun to my stomach and pulled the trigger. I thought I was a goner," added Green.

He said he fell backwards and the suspect then hit him with the pistol, saying, "Don't move or I'll kill you."

Tanner said that at the end of the chase, Carter handed the gun to the woman driver and gave up, saying he had been shot.

Holdup Man Slain; Moll Is Wounded

MOUNT LAUREL, N.J. (AP) — A 32-year-old Cleveland, Ohio, man was fatally shot and his 24-year-old woman companion, also from Cleveland, wounded in a shootout here Monday with police in an attempted bank holdup.

Killed was Patrick J. Sullivan, who had been released April 8 from a federal penitentiary in Terre Haute, Ind., after serving 7 years of a 1 to 15 year sentence. He had been convicted of robbing the Lake County Federal Savings & Loan Association in Painesville, Ohio, on Jan. 28, 1964.

Police identified the woman as Miss Loretta Simoncic, an unemployed office worker. She was reported in fair condition in Burlington County Memorial Hospital with a wound of the abdomen.

Police said they were alerted by a silent alarm at a branch office of the South Jersey National Bank, temporarily housed in a 30-foot trailer. Police said they began arriving after Sullivan had forced a woman teller to lie on the floor and the bank manager to give him money.

Sullivan, armed with a shotgun, disarmed the first policeman to arrive and forced him to lie on the floor.

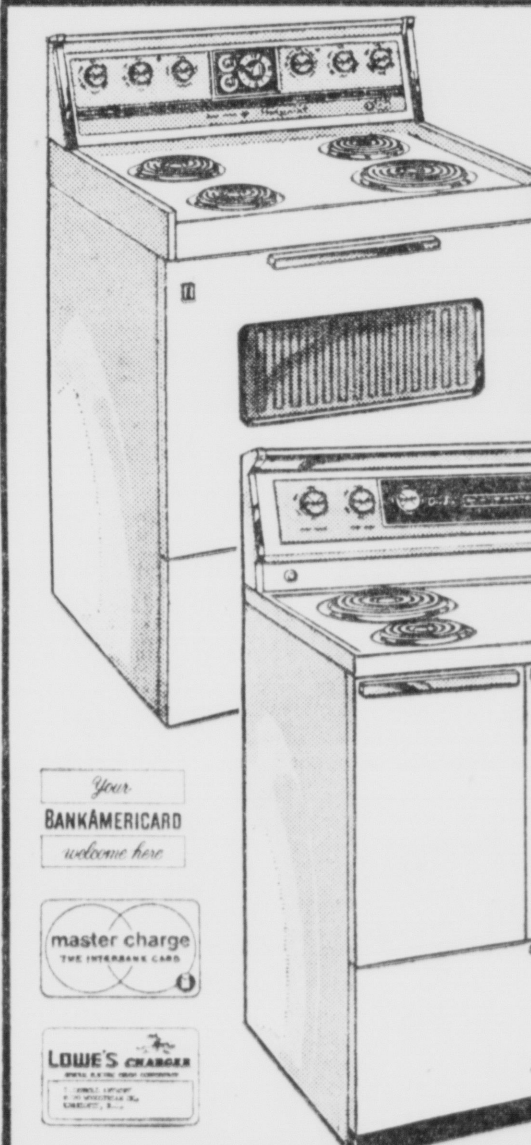

Police said Sullivan shot once at two policemen arriving in a parking lot and then smashed a window in the bank front door and shoved the shotgun muzzle through.

Police Sgt. Raymond Del-Giorno grabbed the shotgun muzzle with one hand and fired six shots from his service revolver into Sullivan's chest.

Miss Simoncic was shot by Sgt. Thomas Smith as she brandished a .38 caliber revolver taken from the first officer who had arrived.

Police said the couple had spent the night in a nearby motel and Sullivan was driving a car borrowed from relatives in Cleveland.
